TORREY CAUGHT IN THE ACT OF SETTING FIRE TO BARN

County Officials Concealed in Weeds Near Rock Lock Waited for Crime They Were Sure James V. Torrey Intended to Commit and Then Nabbed Him in the Act--Had Burned House.

After having set fire to his house near Rock Lock, James V. Torrey, formerly of this city, was arrested at five minutes past one o'clock this morning while he was in the act of firing the barn on the property, and was brought to jail.

The arrest was made by Sheriff Shultis, Under Sheriff Scott D. Hornbeck, District Attorney Frederick G. Traver and Chief of Police J. Allan Wood, who were at work on another case but who are said to have stumbled on the arson case by accident.

Torrey had planned his incendiary fire for the previous night. On Tuesday and Wednesday nights the officials mentioned spent several hours lying flat on the ground among weeds waiting for the plan to advance sufficiently far that they could get Torrey in the act.

The house that was fired by Torsey was destroyed by fire, except the old stone walls, but the fire which Torrey started in the barn was quickly quenched with fire extinguishers which the officials had taken with them.

Planned Fire for Tuesday Night.

A number of crimes, especially burglaries, have been reported recently from the vicinity of Rock Lock and Creek Locks. A desire to frustrate a crime and to gather evidence led the officials to visit the vicinity of Rock Lock and Creek Locks on Tuesday night, and what they learned led them to the old stone house at Rock Lock, which recently was purchased by Torrey.

The crime planned for that night was not consummated and they returned to Kingston at an early hour in the morning, bringing with them some evidences of the proposed arson.

On Wednesday night tney visited the same vicinity again, and were rewarded after several hours' wait.

Torrey first set fire to the house which he evidently had soaked with kerosene and oil. and then proceeded immediately to the barn, which stands about 250 feet in the rear of the house. The barn was well filled with hay, which protruded from the rear, but instead of applying a match there, Torrey attempted to fire the building from the front. He stepped inside the front door and applied a match to a quantity of paper which he had placed there, and then as the blaze began to curl up he stepped out of doors and into the arms of Sheriff Shultis and Chief of Police Wood, who snapped handcuffs on him after Torrey had make a brief struggle.

Barn Blaze Put Out With Extinguishers.

At the same instant, the fire extinguishers were produced, and the blazing paper in the barn was pulled out on the ground and extinguishers used with instantaneous effect on the flooring and other timbers.

House Was Destroyed.

The house had been so well soaked with oil and kerosene that it had begun to blaze as soon as matches had been applied by Torrey, and before he touched off the barn the house was burning in four or five different places where oil-soaked paper had been piled, Torrey walking quickly from room to room and setting fires where they would accomplish his object with the quickest speed.

The fire in the house had gained such headway by the time Torrey had started for the barn that it was impossible to fight the fire successfully with the extinguishers, and it is doubtful if the house could have been saved by a fire department having access to fire hydrants and a water supply.

Officials Hid in Weeds and Grass.

The house that was fired by Torrey is situated on the road near the bridge which crosses the old Delaware & Hudson canal near Rock Lock, and is known as the Reckten-wald property. The house was built of stone and stood about fifteen feet back from the road. On the opposite side of the roadway was a wagon house and granary, and Torrey tied his horse under the shed while he made the preparations for firing the place. In fact, in driving into the shed, Torrey's horse almost stepped on some of the officials who were lying flat in the weeds and tall grass.

Busy An Hour Getting Ready.

The preparations for firing the place kept Torrey busy for an hour. He arrived at the house a few minutes before midnight and it was at five minutes past one o'clock when he was seized by Sheriff Shultis and Chief of Police Wood as he stepped from the barn after setting it on fire. Torrey was surprised and crestfallen. After the handcuffs had been snapped on his wrists he made no attempt to get away, and without a struggle but in the most companionable manner accompanied the officials back to Kingston and to the jail, where he was locked up.

Property Was Not Occupied.

The house has been unoccupied for some time. It was bought by Torrey several months ago and efforts to dispose of it were unsuccessful. He had it and the barn insured for their full value.

Torrey's Matrimonial Ventures.

Torrey came in the limelight several months ago when his first wife, who had left him a long time ago, sued him for divorce on the ground of adultery, setting forth the fact that he had married another woman without having gone through the formality of securing a divorce from her. Mrs. Torrey was given a divorce from him.

The disclosures of the divorce suit resulted in a suit for the annulment of his second marriage. It appeared that he had gone to a farm near Creek Locks to buy some pigs and while there he met the daughter of the farmer with whom he had his business transaction. He told the girl he was not a married man and proposed marriage to her. His proposal was accepted. When his second wife learned that he had a wife living at the time of his marriage to her, she secured an annulment, which was granted several weeks ago.

Torrey lives on the road that leads from Greenkill Park to Creek Locks, about a mile and a half from the scene of his crime.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, Sept. 14.—Mrs. N. B. Marsh and friend Mrs. Starr of Ridgefield Park, spent Sunday with Miss Marsh's parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Millard.

Howard B. Ellsworth and Thomas Farrell of Middletown, spent Sunday in Ellenville guests at the Mitchell House.

Mrs. R. L. Moffitt is spending the week in New York city.

Albert V. Porter and daughter Helen Porter are spending the week at Syracuse, visiting his brother, Saul Porter and family.

Edward A. Smiley and sister, Mrs. J. H. Lathrop were called to East Orange, N. J., on Tuesday by the death of their niece, Miss Dorothy Baldwin, a young lady of 19 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew T. Newkirk of Greenfield have gone to visit relatives at Ohioville.

It is not yet decided as to the exact date of the opening of the Ellenville schools. If possible, the board of education would like the schools opened on Monday, September 25.

Mrs. Zorah Whiteley Sullivan entertained a company of friends at the Wayside Inn, where she is a guest, on Friday evening last.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Graham, who have been well known residents of Ellenville for several years, have moved to White Plains, where they are to reside.

It has been decided not to hold a meeting of the local W. C. T. U. during September. The regular meeting will be held on Wednesday afternoon, October 11, when the year's work will begin. All members of the local union are requested to bear the above date in mind. The building committee hope to have all arrangements perfected for the Hunt Memorial Building by that date.

Mrs. William Douglas very happily entertained at her home on Maple avenue Tuesday afternoon, the members of her class 1903, of the Ellenville High School. The guest of honor was Mrs. Elizabeth Parker Gould of Brooklyn. Games were the feature of the afternoon's entertainment followed with a happy hour or reminescences interspersed with delicious refreshments.

Henry J. Shurter took a party by auto to Syracuse on Tuesday to attend the state fair.

A number of trees throughout the village have been ordered taken down by the village trustees, which is certainly worth considering, as the trees of the village are old and need looking after on account of the public safety.

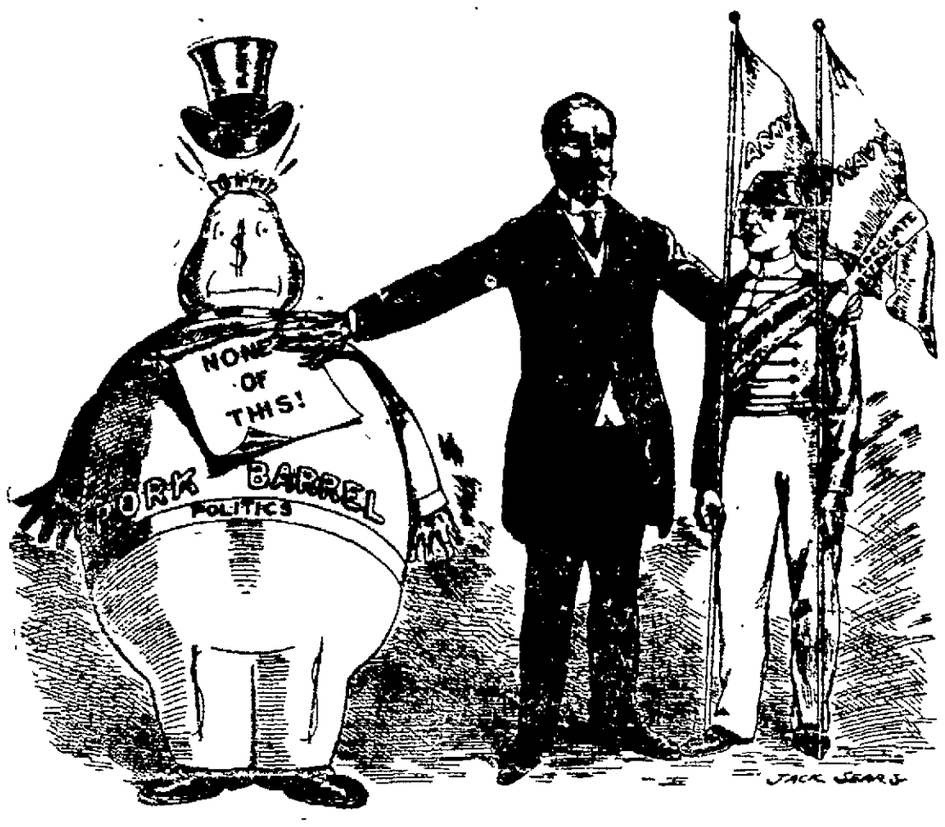

Ellenville and vicinity seems quite deserted as the many strangers have returned to their several homes. A number of guests yet linger at Terace Hill House, Mt. Meenahga and Mt. Mongola, who love the autumn beauty of the valley hill and mountain side during the months of September and October.

Black Bass Are Biting.

Black bass are biting freely in the Rondout creek at Eddyville and fishermen are landing beauties weighing from four to five pounds each. It was reported Wednesday that Charles DeGraff of Eddyville had landed a bass weighing seven pounds. The bait being used is mostly worms.

RIOTERS KEEP POLICE BUSY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 14.—Rioting along the elevated and surface lines affected by the traction strike continued today. During the early hours no serious violence occurred but there were enought disturbances throughout the strike zone to keep the police on the jump.

As usual the favorite method of attack was hurling missiles from roofs at passing elevated trains and dragging motormen and conductors from the surface cars.

A Ninth avenue train was deluged with bricks and bottles as it sped past One Hundred and Twenty Seventh-street [illegible] crashed through a car window but nobody was injured.

From the roof of a tenement at 6th avenue and Fiftieth street a fusillade of stones and bottles showered upon a train, smashing several windows. Another train was bombarded at Ninth avenue and Thirty-fourth street, but no one was hurt and no arrests made.

Reiterating their declaration that the strike of the elevated and subway lines had been broken and the struggle on the surface lines would terminate in a few hours in a defeat of the union, traction officials early in the day set about making their threat good.

Assembling 1,400 loyal employes at the surface car barns, they sent out the cars at frequent intervals, all under police guard. Men who had been held in reserve as strike breakers were discharged as a result of warning that the city authorities would not permit the operation of cars by unexperienced crews.

By 8 a. m. 144 surface cars were in operation. The entire front of each car was protected by heavy wire netting to stop any missiles that might be thrown by rioters.

Two additional trains of eight cars, making a total of 104 trains being used, were placed in operation on the subway during the rush hour. There was enormous congestion on both the elevated and subway lines, but the traction chiefs asserted that the normal schedule was being maintained.

Early in the day the strikers began to gather at the Labor Lyceum for their parade to Union Square, where President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and Organizer William B. Fitzgerald of the carmen's union were scheduled to make addresses.

During the forenoon there were a number of demonstrations about the Labor Lyceum, extemporaneous speakers assailing the traction companies and urging the men to stand firm.

Was a False Alarm.

Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock a false alarm of fire was rung in from box 24 to which the firemen responded. The alarm was rung in by Thomas Schoonmaker who explained to Recorder Lang this morning that he had seen smoke and thought there was a fire which caused him to turn in the alarm. Mr. Schoonmaker was discharged by the court after he had heard his explanation as to why he turned in the alarm.

Fire on Newkirk Avenue.

This morning shortly after 7 o'clock an alarm of fire was rung in from box No. 43 to which the firemen quickly responded. The fire was in the residence of Christopher Genther, No. 19 Newkirk avenue. His four-year-old son was alone in the bed room and got hold of some matches with which he was playing. Some clothing caught fire and the flames swept out the open window and ran up the side of the house setting fire to the shingles on the roof. The blaze was extinguished with the aid of the chemicals.

MISSING MILK MYSTERY SOLVED

Householders Along Broadway Miss Milk Bottles from Porches—The Secret Order of Bottle Lifters.

The mystery of the disappearance of milk bottles from the porches along Broadway near Brewster street, was solved when Policeman Welsh made a raid on a hut on Brewster street this morning and rounded up five small boys who confessed that they had taken the milk. They were taken before Recorder Lang, who adjourned the hearing until Friday moining to have the parents notified to be present in court.

It seems that the boys have built a hut on Brewster street, and several of the "gang" have made it a habit to sleep in the hut nights instead of going home. Early this morning, after the milk bottles had been left at the homes of customers by Charles DeForest, a local milkman, the boys started out on a foray and stole a number of the bottles for breakfast. When the customers went to get the milk for breakfast they found the bottles missing.

Several complaints about this gang of boys had been made to Recorder Lang, it being claimed that they had stolen not only milk, but also fruit from nearby yards. The names of the boys were given to Officer Welch and he went to the hut.

As he tried the door a voice from within said, "Give the countersign."

"This is the countersign," replied Welch, yanking open the door. He found five boys within the hut. Three of the boys had spent the night there while the other two had just reached the hut before the officer arrived.

Recorder Lang told the boys that he would hold the case open until Friday morning and told them that today they had better tear down the hut which they had built and make restitution as far as possible for the milk they had taken.

GREASED RAILS CAUSE COLLISION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 14.—Eight persons were hurt, one seriously, in a series of collisions at Westchester and Brook avenues in the Bronx today when strike sympathizers greased the rails on the surface car lines there.

The motormen were unable to stop their cars on the grade at this point owing to the grease. Traffic was tied up for some time. Crowds jeered the cars' green crews until dispersed by the police.

To End Storm King Obstacle.

Acting on the suggestion of the Newburgh News, the Orange county board of supervisors has voted to acquire the property of the Storm King Stone Company by purchase or condemnation proceedings. This step was made necessary because of the stone company's having obtained an injunction against further work on the Storm King highway now under construction because the blasting sent rocks rolling down on its property. It is now believed that this important work in which the entire Hudson Valley is interested will be pushed to completion at an early date.

"The Mikado" in New Paltz.

The great musical event scheduled for New Paltz next summer is Gilbert & Sullivan's famous comic opera, "The Mikado." This will be produced in the opera house by a company of local actors and singers under the direction A. Stanley Osborn.

NO NEW CASES OF TYPHOID

No new cases of typhoid fever were reported to Dr. Frank A. Johnston, the health officer, up to noon today. At the present time there are nine cases in the city which are well scattered one being on Abeel street, one on Cedar street, two on Hoffman street, two on Foxhall avenue, one on Smith avenue, one on Tubby street, and one on Fair street.

Dr. Johnston said this morning that samples of milk and water from the seven farms supplying to the local milk dealer, whose milk is thought to have caused the disease, have been taken and sent to Albany for analysis, owing to the absence from the city of Dr. Sanderson who is enjoying his vacation. No report has been received from Albany as yet.

FELL FROM LADDER WHILE PAINTING

Arthur Tubby of Grant street, a member of Company M, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Tuesday afternoon while engaged at his trade of painter. He was painting the residence of Alfred Smith at No. 25 Second avenue and while on top of a ladder against the side of the house the ladder swayed and he was hurled to the ground below a distance of about twenty feet. It was thought at first that he had sustained internal injuries, but he has so far recovered that it is expected he will be able to resume work next week.

WAR FUND INQUIRY EXONERATES BAYLIS

Parker-Roosevelt Inquiry Board Finds Baylis Acted in Good Faith And Urges That Deficiency be Made Good.

Dr. Charles T. Baylis of Brooklyn, director general of the Allies' Hospital Relief Commission, who has been indicted on charges of grand larceny because of his manner of conducting the commission, was exonerated in a report by R. J. Caldwell, a member of the commission, and by C. Walter Randall, made public yesterday, says the Times.

Dr. Baylis was indicted after it had been alleged that of $8,000 collected by the commission not one cent had been turned over to the hospitals of the allies The report said:

"We have been unable to find a single instance of malfeasance on the part of Dr. Baylis. He has apparently kept faithful, accurate and detailed reports of all his expenditures and receipts and has accounted for everything that has been received from any source. The fact that literature appealing for funds was sent out advising subscribers that 'you have assurance that every dollar of your donation will be used in meeting their (suffering fellow beings) trying needs; for the expenses of the commission are met from a fund maintained by the members and by special contributions,' does not impress us with any bad faith on Dr. Baylis's part He has advised us that the expenses of the commission were to be met through the entertainments and benefits which the commission was working on, and we are convinced of his good faith in believing that it would not be necessary to use any part of the donations for operating expenses."

The report shows that the overhead expenses of the commission ate up all of the receipts and left a deficit which is now about $4,000.

The investigation was instituted by a letter sent on August 16 by Colonel Roosevelt and R. J. Caldwell, members of the commission, to Judge Alton B. Parker, its president, asking for an investigation. A letter signed by Colonel Roosevelt and Judge Parker says this about the report of the investigators:

These reports in our judgment establish that a great injury has been done Dr. Baylis. Nevertheless the fact that attacks upon him have been given wide circulation through the press followed as they have been by an indictment for larceny, leads us to the conclusion that the usefulness of the commission has been seriously impaired and it should pass out of existence. Therefore, we recommend:

First—That the commission be at once dissolved.

Second—That the several members of the association contribute the moneys necessary (a) to pay off the debts of the commission, and (b) to turn over to the allies' hospitals the moneys contributed in response to the letter of the commission dated July 14, 1916, promising that all money received in response to such letter should be turned over to the allies' hospitals.

The letter, which is addressed to members of the executive committee, concludes:

If you agree with us, please apportion the sum required between all the members of the association and request the remittance. We stand ready to do our share.

In reference to the alleged unauthorized use of names by Dr. Baylis, the report says of the case of Henry Clews, who repudiated his being listed as treasurer of the commission, that Mr. Clews had peromised to act as treasurer if the association was incorporated, and adds: "It may be that Dr. Baylis took too much for granted in anticipating the incorporation of the association, but it does not appear that any deception was practiced on Mr. Clews in the matter.

Injunction Case Argued.

The case of the New York Central Railroad Company and Clinton Van Buskirk against Henry Mauterstock was argued at the appellate division at Saratoga Wednesday. The railroad company and Van Buskirk applied to special term to have Mauterstock punished for contempt of court for alleged solicitation of passengers for his auto business at the Saugerties station. Judge Hasbrouck denied the application and the railroad company and Van Buskirk appealed to the appellate division. Amos Van Etten argued the case for the railroad company and ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier for Mauterstock.

PARALYSIS CASES REPORTED TODAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Sept. 14.—Twenty-three new cases of infantile paralysis and six deaths reported today to the state department of health increased the totals outside of Greater New York to 2,753 and 294 respectively.

The deaths occurred at Buffalo, Erie county; Oswego, Oswego county; Hyde Park town, Dutchess county, and Peekskill, Gouverneur and Briarcliffe Manor Westchester county.

Today's new cases were reported from the following places:

Tompkins county, Ithaca.

Albany county, Albany.

Westchester county, Mt. Vernon, 2, Harrison, Mt. Pleasant and Mamaroneck, 1 each.

Chenango county, Oxford and Scriba, 1 each.

Oswego county, Oswego city, New Haven, 1 each.

Erie county Buffalo, 3.

Onondaga county, Syracuse 3; Minona 1.

Delaware county, town of Middletown, 1.

Greene county, Cairo 1.

Cayuga county, Cato 1.

Schoharie county, Wright 1.

Dutchess county, Red Hook 1.

New York, Sept 14.—Infantile paralysis figures today showed increases in both new cases and deaths. New cases reported were 36, an increase of five, and deaths 11, an increase of 2.

Walden will open its public schools on Monday, September 25.

New Paltz has removed all quarantine restrictions upon children entering the village or attending public gatherings of any kind.

SEA MONSTER NOW SHOWN TO BE SEAL

Catskill Folk See Strange Visitor on Small Island in Hudson River—Believed to be Same Animal Which Recently Roused Rondout.

Probably the first seal ever seen in the Hudson river at this point was seen Saturday noon by Counselor and Mrs. William Thorpe and Mr. and Mrs. Tremain Loud, of Catskill. Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe and Mr. and Mrs. Loud, with William Thorpe Jr., were on their way to the Thorpe camp at Roger's Island Saturday in a boat, and when nearing the plaatje spied an immense animal perched upon the sand.

The size and strangeness of the animal aroused the curiosity of the boating party and they headed their craft toward the plaatje to get a better view. However they were unable to get within fifty yards of the shore before the animal slid back into the water and swam away. But the occupants of the boat were near enough to distinguish the animal as a large seal weighing about two hundred pounds.

Although this is the first seal that has been seen in these parts. These marine animals have been frequently seen in the Hudson near Nyack according to report. It is said that a seal—probably the same one that was on the plaatje was seen at the mouth of Rondout Creek last month. The reason for seals being in the Hudson is attributed to the fact that the sharks are driving them from the ocean.—Hudson Republican.

Mr. Byer's Injury.

Frank Byer, who was injured Tuesday when he was caught between a trolley car and an automobile on Main street, is unable to leave his bed yet on account of the severe nature of the bruises about the calf of his leg. An X-Ray photograph taken by Dr. Van Wagenen on Tuesday showed that although no bone was broken the bone was badly bruised and the flesh and ligaments badly torn. The injury is not causing Mr. Byer much pain but owing to the bruised condition of the bone the doctors consider it safer for him to remain in bed for a time in order to keep the injured member in a horizontal position. It will be some time before the injury will permit Mr. Byer to assume his usual activities. That he was not more seriously injured is due to the excellent physical condition and the unusual muscular development from the hardy, outdoor exercise indulged in by Mr. Byer.

Prudential Staff Outing.

The annual outing and field day of the Kingston Prudential Insurance men will take place next Saturday. HOTEL LICENSES MORE DIFFICULT

Application Blanks for October First Are Staggering for Hotelkeepers, Who Must Furnish Much Information—Mayor to Make Inspection Visits?

It will be a difficult matter for any person to obtain and hold a hotel license in this city after October 1 if he is not actually operating a hotel in every sense of the word.

Sections 45 and 46 of the state liquor tax law included in the application blanks are new so far as applying to applications. The law provides they must be answered truthfully and if after the license is granted it is found the statement was made under false pretenses the license will be cancelled at once.

New Sections Added.

The sections referred to provide:

45—State whether the premises in which it is proposed to traffic in liquors under the certificate applied for, is a building regularly used and kept open as a hotel for the feeding and lodging of guests, where all who conduct themselves properly and who are able and ready to pay for their entertainment, are received if there be accommodations for them, and who without any stipulated engagement as to the duration of their stay or as to the rate of compensation, are, while there, supplied, at a reasonable charge with their meals, lodgings, refreshment and such service and attention as are necessarily incident to the use of the state or locality pertaining to the building, fire and health departments in relation to hotels and hotel keepers?

46—Are said premises situate in a city or in an incorporated village of twelve hundred or more inhabitants, or within two miles of the a—Does such hotel building fully comply with the laws, ordinances rules and regulations relating to hotels and hotel keepers, including all laws, ordinances rules and regulations of the state or county or the building fire and health departments in relation to hotels and hotel keepers?

b—Does such hotel building contain at least ten bedrooms above the basement, exclusive of those occupied by the family and servants of the hotel keeper?

c—Does such hotel building contain at least one hundred bedrooms above the basement, exclusive of those occupied by the family and servants of the hotel keeper?

d—Is each of said rooms properly furnished to accommodate lodgers?

e—Is each of said rooms separated by partitions at least three inches thick extending from floor to ceiling, with independent access to each room by a door opening into a hallway?

f—Does each of said rooms have a window or windows with not less than eight square feet of surface opening upon a street or open court, light shaft or open air?

g—Does each of said rooms have at least 80 square feet of floor area?

h—Does each of said rooms have at least 600 cubic feet of space therein?

i—Does such hotel building contain a dining room with at least three hundred square feet of floor area, which shall not be a part of the barroom?

j—Does such dining room contain a sufficient number of tables, with suitable table furniture and accommodations for at least 20 guests therein at one and the same time?

k—Does such hotel building contain a kitchen and conveniences for cooking therein, sufficient to provide bona fide meals at one and the same time for 20 guests?

l—Has there been filed in the office of the certificate-issuing officer a sworn statement that such declared hotel building complies with the provisions of section 30 of the liquor tax law, relating to hotels and hotel keepers?

Must be Hotel Exclusively.

It will be seen that the applicant must have a building occupied exclusively for hotel purposes with a certain number of rooms, each room having a separate opening into the hall and a window. Also that the partitions between must be at least three inches thick and the proprietor must be prepared at all times to serve any one who applies for lodging.

Another problem is the interpretation of the mayor's duties of inspection. The law requires the mayor to inspect and report the condition of all premises where applications for hotel licenses are asked. Legal opinion is divided in regard to this. Some attorneys hold that this only applies to new places and that other places which have been granted hotel licenses year after year need not be visited unless the mayor desires to do so; but that at any time he makes an inspection and finds they are violating the law he must ask that their licenses be cancelled.

Another interpretation is that the statute means just what it says and the mayor must visit all premises where applications are made for hotel licenses and that he must from personal observation certify as to the condition of the places and their availability for hotel purposes.

SAWKILL.

Sawkill, Sept. 14.—Lieut. Daniel Murphy of the New York police paid a visit recently at St. Ann's rectory. The Rev George J Vaeth presented him with a precious medal, which he highly appreciated The lieutenant stated that he had been an altar boy in St. Ann's Church some 30 odd years ago.

Mass next Sunday at St Wendelin's Church, Ruby, at 8 a m. Communion Sunday for senior and junior Holy Name Societies. Sermon and benediction of Bl Sacrament. Mass at St Ann's Church, Sawkill, at 10 a m. Explanation of the saints on the glazier windows, installed some time ago, followed by benediction of the Bl Sacrament. No Sunday school until further notice. The Rev George J. Vaeth, rector.

The Rev George J Vaeth was deacon at the solemn funeral mass of the late James Glennon, held at St. Peter's Church, Rondout, Tuesday.

Joseph and Miss Claire Schneider of Brooklyn are visitors at the rectory; they are cousins of the Rev. George J Vaeth.

The Rev Peter Spellman, pastor of St John's Church, Stony Hollow, was a visitor at the rectory Labor Day and gave a grand speech in the hall that evening.

Messrs. Edward Joseph, Bernard and Raymond Leahy and Mrs. Michael Leahy of Brooklyn were visitors at the rectory.

Mrs James Howard of Kingston was a visitor at the rectory.

One of the grandest monuments was erected in St Ann's cemetery by the Byrne Bros., Kingston, in memory of the deceased of Leahy family. The monument is the pride of Sawkill.

An artistic gothic sanctuary lamp, which was presented to St. Ann's Church, will be put in place by the John Duffner Bros., of Kingston.

The minstrel show given by the Knights of St. John, Rondout, on Labor Day proved by far and above a financial success. Never in the history of Sawkill were so many autos and rigs and crowds of people to participate at the minstrel show.

SAVING LITTLE THINGS.

My message in its fashion shall be an appeal to enthusiasm in things in life, a call to do things because we love them, to love things because we do them, to keep the eyes open, the heart warm and the pulse swift, as we move across the field of life.—David Starr Jordan.

Keep your soap in an ordinary wire basket over the sink as the soap dishes hold water and waste the soap. Pour boiling soft water on small pieces of soap and use as softsoap.

A little water left in tubs and pails of wood will prevent them from falling in pieces Brown paper folded and placed in a wall pocket or drawer are always handy for wrapping articles. Keep a ball of twine, made from winding bits of string from the various packages.

Heat new irons, baking dishes and frying-pans gradually to save them from cracking.

Save all husks from green corn, dry, and use as stuffing for porch pillows, or they make fine kindling for the grate fire.

Brooms should be hung or rested on the handle in order to keep the broomcorn straight.

The yolk of egg left when making cake may be covered with a little cold water and used a day or two later.

A dish of preserves left from yesterday's meal may be added to whipped cream and served as a sauce to rice, gelatin or cornstarch pudding.

By giving thought to the daily routine, having a system, with the economy of time duly considered, a great amount of work may be accomplished with less wear and tear of nerves than work done with no planning.

Water in which vegetables are cooked should be saved to flavor soups.

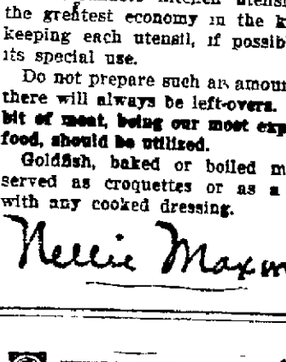

In preparing any dish get all the materials ready before beginning the preparation; then there will be no flurried looking for some ingredient which is found missing.

Nonbreakable kitchen utensils are the greatest economy in the kitchen. keeping each utensil, if possible, for its special use.

Do not prepare such an amount that there will always be left-overs. Every bit of meat, being our most expensive food, should be utilized.

Goldfish, baked or boiled may be served as croquettes or as a salad with any cooked dressing.

Clearing Away Underbrush.

Further signs of activity on the Sleightsburgh bridge job were seen Wednesday and today when men were busy clearing away the underbrush along the Port Ewen side of the creek. It is said that dynamite will have to be used on that side of the creek and that the men were clearing away the brush so that drilling could be done.

RICH MEN'S MISTAKES.

Even the Greatest Financiers Get In on Bad Investments.

Every investor must learn by experience, and experience costs money. Everybody has to foot the bill for his own education. The man who buys a horse and finds he has been cheated ought to and probably will know better how to make his next horse trade. The same thing applies to the purchase of real estate or any other property, securities included.

I have commented often on the credulity of the public in buying all kinds of securities without knowledge of their real value. This credulity apparently extends to all classes. It is a curious fact that the estates of some of our greatest financiers after the death of the latter disclose large holdings of worthless or nearly worthless securities.

As shrewd and careful a man as the late Russell Sage left a lot of what are called "cats and dogs," though these constituted but a fraction of his enormous estate. The late J. P. Morgan, head of one of the strongest, most conservative and richest banking houses in the world, left about $70,000,000, and the inventory shows that one-tenth of this, or $7,000,000, is marked as "worthless."

It included all kinds of mining, industrial and other speculative enterprises that may have promised returns, but that failed to meet expectations. Possibly the worthless securities Sage and Morgan held came to them as a part of trade deals without costing them much, or possibly they were bought to help out friends. Mr. Morgan especially was known to have manifested his friendship in a very substantial manner to those to whom he had taken a liking.—Leslie's Weekly.

THEY TOLD THE TRUTH.

But Not All of It, and So Their Testimony Was Misleading.

An attorney who has practiced law in Indianapolis for many years formerly was counsel for a railroad company entering the city. He told the following story recently:

"I remember a damage case we had once which illustrates how easily the truth may mislead if another material fact is withheld. A man had been killed by a passenger train when crossing a grade a few miles out of Indianapolis. It was at night, and the rattle of his covered wagon prevented his hearing the approaching train.

"Two witnesses testified that no headlight was burning on the locomotive and that they did not hear any whistle. It was in the days when oil headlights were universal, and each headlight was equipped with a little shade like a window blind that could be raised and lowered. The engineer and the fireman testified that they had lighted the headlight an hour before the accident and that they examined it after the accident and found it burning.

"We won the case. Several days after that I met the engineer and asked him, 'John, how did it happen those other people testified the headlight was not burning?' 'Well,' he said, 'they were right in a way. We lighted the headlight and pulled down the shade. It was still down when the accident occurred, but we told the truth when we said it was lighted.'"—Indianapolis News.

Complicated Injuries.

Angelina, having said something that offended Edwin, was pained at the look of pique on his face. "Oh, my darling, my darling!" she cried. "I have hurt you!" "No, my dearest," he replied gravely. "The hurt I feel is due to the fact that I know it hurts you to feel that you have hurt me." "Ah, no! Do not let that hurt you for an instant. My hurt is because I know it hurts you to feel that I have hurt myself by hurting you." "No, my precious! My hurt is because you are hurt over feeling that I am hurt because you feel that you have hurt me and are therefore hurt yourself, and"—

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Winchell visited relatives in Kingston Sunday.

Severe Blow to Germans.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 14.—Capture of Feronne by French troops, a blow that will ultimately force the Germans to abandon the Great Noyon salient, that they have maintained since the battle of the Marne two years ago, was forecasted by dispatches received here from Amsterdam today.

Smallest British Possession.

Gibraltar, which consists of less than two square miles, is the smallest British possession. Canada, covering 3,746,000 square miles, is the largest.

Parson Frake's Donation

And He Took the Bishop's Advice.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

When Arthur Frake was graduated from the theological seminary before taking his departure he called on the bishop to take leave of him and thank him for various acts of kindness the good old man had favored him with during his period of study.

"Well, my boy," said the bishop, "going out to service in the Lord's vineyard, eh? Sit down. I have a few words to say to you on one subject, and one subject only. You've got all the theology you need in the seminary. It isn't that which I wish to speak to you about. It isn't anything concerning the methods you should observe in your work. It is this:

"We clergymen are apt to be made or marred—as all men are—by the wives we choose. Now, look out whom you marry. Your field is not a worldly field, and if you marry a worldly woman it would be better for you that you tied a millstone about your neck. It doesn't matter where you find a wife, whether in the city or in the country. She should have a sympathetic nature, to feel for those whom it becomes your part to help. Indeed, she should make your work her work."

This was the bishop's advice. Mr. Frake was much impressed with it, but he had his doubts about finding a girl that would fill his adviser's conditions. He had always associated with the upper ten thousand and had not found much unselfishness among them. Instead of living for the world he had usually found them disposed to consider the world as especially created to administer to their comfort.

Nevertheless he shrank from taking a life partner except from the class to which he belonged. Would it not be better to be allied with a woman of fashion than with one whose unpolished manners would constantly put him to the blush? Then, too, his own family were to be considered. Naturally they would expect him to marry one whom they might receive as a social equal.

Mr. Frake's first call was to a village wherein dwelt only a few thousand people. His congregation was not at all like those of which he had been a member himself during his boyhood and youth. They were plain people, honest in their way, but as to spirituality, or, rather, humanity, he did not find them any better than those he had known in the city. One day soon after taking the pastorate while writing in his study, looking up from his sermon, he saw his housekeeper standing in the doorway.

"What is it, Mrs. Wells?" he asked.

Mrs. Wells, fat and panting from a morning spent over the ironing board, wiped her forehead with a crisp white handkerchief.

"I wondered what would come next," she groaned. "First, there was the Tuttles making trouble over the distributing of the pews, then the quarrel in the choir, and I knew that there would be a third calamity!"

"You haven't told me what it is," smiled Arthur Frake.

"A donation, sir!"

"A donation," he repeated, aghast. "Dear me, I wish they wouldn't, Mrs. Wells. They mean well, but"—

"Oh, their intentions are all right," interrupted the housekeeper darkly, for she had served many ministers and many donation parties, "but they don't realize that by the time they've descended like a flock of locusts and eaten all the food they've brought and more, too, why, I'm left with a house to be cleaned from top to bottom and you're the richer by a jar of Beulah Humphrey's sour pickles and maybe a few bushels of potatoes that we didn't have time to cook for 'em."

Arthur Frake laughed heartily.

"There's a measure of truth in what you say, Mrs. Wells," he admitted. "Still, I suppose we must look at the motive underneath this invasion. They mean to be kind, and we must do the best we can to make it pleasant for them. When is it to be?"

"Tomorrow night and a complete surprise. I wouldn't have known a word of it if Betsy Haskell hadn't warned me. I'm glad to know, so's I can bake some beans and corn bread; then they needn't eat up all the layer cakes and salads they bring!"

She lumbered out of the room and left the minister to resume his sermon. This was his first charge, and he was sincerely desirous of being adviser and friend to his little flock. They were all plain village people, with a large percentage of prosperous families among them.

He had heard of donation parties, but he had believed that they were festivities of the past century. Still, Bayport clung to many traditions, and it was evident that a donation party for the new minister was a cherished institution.

So he submitted with good grace and the next afternoon picked all the chrysanthemums in the parsonage garden to bedeck the immaculately neat but rather severe rooms.

As he wandered about Arthur Frake was conscious that his home lacked the feminine touch. Mrs. Wells was an excellent cook and housekeeper, but she was not a home maker.

He thought rather ruefully that it might be many years before he had a wife. Certainly he had never met the girl of his dreams, and he was not likely to find her in this remote village.

There was not a speck of dust to be seen in the parsonage when the kerosene lamps were lighted. It would be an hour yet before the donation party would arrive, and some one was talking volubly to Mrs. Wells in the sitting room. Their voices reached the minister in his study. Mrs. Wells' wheezy tones were punctuated by another woman's shrill utterances.

"Millie Rhodes says it's the first time they've never been able to give five bushels of potatoes to the new minister, and I says to her, I says: 'Don't cry, Milly. Mr. Frake will understand how it is—your pa being sick so long and your ma dying, and all.' But she only said she wished she had something to give, because she had to stop putting anything into the plate at church. 'Seems to me, Mrs. Smith,' says she, 'seems to me poor folks are just squeezed tight to the wall. The Bible says not to place any value on money, and yet it's the only thing that seems to count in this world.'" The speaker drew a long breath.

"Poor child!" sobbed Mrs. Wells. "I hope she ain't going to stay home just because she can't bring anything."

"I told her she would have to come anyway. Ann Dent is going to stay with Mr. Rhodes for a spell."

The doorbell rang, and Mrs. Wells hurried into the hall. Arthur Frake heard her exclamation of pleasure.

"Why, Millie, child, I am glad to see you!" she cried. "Come right in and meet Mr. Frake. You've never met him, your pa being sick ever since Mr. Frake came. Oh, Mr. Frake, here's the first one, Miss Millie Rhodes, from the Hollow farm!"

In this disjointed fashion Arthur Frake met a parishioner whom he had never seen. Millie Rhodes was a tall, fair girl, with soft blue eyes and a sweet mouth. She was dressed in black, and he recollected that they had said she had lost her mother. Her arms were filled with flowers—chrysanthemums of every color, great branches of crimson dogwood berries, trailing lengths of orange and scarlet bittersweet and a bunch of pink geraniums with sweet smelling leaves.

"It was all I had to bring," she said a little wistfully as she dropped them on the study table.

"And a beautiful donation, Miss Rhodes. I thank you," said the minister sincerely as he took her hand. "Will you add another favor—arrange them about the rooms? No, only in this room," he added whimsically.

So Millie Rhodes stepped lightly to and fro, arranging vases and bowls of flowers on mantelpiece and tables, trailing the dogwood and bittersweet berries over pictures and mirrors and at the minister's request placing the bowl of pink geraniums on his desk.

"Rose geraniums are my favorite flowers," he said gravely. And they were from that instant.

Then came the sound of laughter and a loud ringing at the front door. The house was filled with a merry crowd of the minister's flock, all pushing forward to shake his hand and utter good wishes. Each one brought something—a bag or bundle or basket—and soon the kitchen tables were heaped with bushels of potatoes, apples, dried fruit, bags of flour, jars of preserves and pickles, toothsome layer cakes and pies and all the goodies that farmers' wives know how to manufacture.

Millie Rhodes sat quietly in a corner with a group of friends and there was a quiet happiness in her face that no one save Mrs. Wells and Sarah Smith and, of course, the minister quite understood.

Millie's donation beautified the minister's own room, and unconsciously her fingers had given the deft womanly touches that the room needed.

By and by some asked her to sing, and she arose and, unaccompanied, sang in a sweet, flutelike voice many old ballads that brought tears to the eyes of the older people.

"I should like my wife to sing like that," thought Arthur Frake as he moved among his people.

This donation was not exactly like other donation parties. Even Emma Wells admitted that. To begin with, there was such an abundance of gifts that the company could not possibly dispose of them at the supper, which was served at 10 o'clock.

Then Mr. Frake was young, and youth creates a different atmosphere. The old parsonage had always been a gloomy place in the pastorate of the aged Mr. Walker, and tonight there was such a feeling of cheerfulness and good fellowship between young and old that the parish was united in stronger bonds of love than ever before.

"Good night," they called as they went away—"good night, Mr. Frake, and good luck."

And Arthur Frake, having blessed them a few moments before, fell on his knees in the fragrant little study and poured out his soul in thankfulness for the kindness that was showered upon him.

And he especially prayed for Millie Rhodes, who had given what she could out of her meager store.

There came a day in the following year, after Millie had been bereft of her remaining parent, that Arthur Frake lingered at the Hollow farm and asked Millie to come and make the parsonage a home for him.

"It will be a donation," he smiled down at her, "the best donation you can make to me and my people. We need you, Millie Rhodes."

And when they were married, why, of course the minister's people must make another donation, and this time the parsonage was cozy and homelike with a woman's touch, the same touch which had lighted the flame of love in the minister's heart.

HOW

To Destroy Troublesome Insect Pests In Your Home

ROACHES.—Coal oil is one of the best agents for the destruction of roaches and their eggs. It should be sprayed freely by means of a machine oil can into the cracks and crevices of the floors and other woodwork where they breed. Powdered borax mixed with a little sugar is also a good remedy, but in the presence of other food borax is not very effective. It is suggested that cracks and crevices, which are their hiding places, be closed up with putty or paint. Since these pests hide by day and go forth at night to feed, it is essential that all foodstuffs be kept under cover and crumbs carefully swept from the floor. The kitchen sink should be kept scrupulously clean, while the kitchen closets should be thoroughly scrubbed from time to time.

Ants.—These little busy workers may readily invade the home. They can easily be destroyed by tracing them to their nests and pouring into them gasoline, benzine or coal oil. When using these substances remember that they are highly inflammable.

Fleas.—Human fleas, dog fleas and cat fleas are familiar household pests, the latter being the most prevalent. The larvae or embryo young of fleas live in the interstices of carpets, mattings and in the corners and cracks of floors. Since cats and dogs generally bring these pests into the home, care should be taken that these animals be kept thoroughly clean. Special rugs should be provided for them to sleep upon and the dust from the rugs burned. Hot water, soap and the scrub brush are very effective in destroying the pests which hide in the crevices of the floors. Here again gasoline is one of the best destructive agents. Carpets and heavy draperies should be dispensed with during the warm weather.

Bedbugs.—Their presence does not always reflect upon the housewife, as they may be found in very carefully kept homes. A good way to destroy them is to spray their hiding places with a solution of corrosive sublimate (one ounce to a pint of alcohol). This substance is poisonous and should be so marked. Gasoline is one of the most efficient agents used in the extermination of the bedbug and should be sprayed freely in cracks and crevices with a machine oil can. Turpentine and kerosene are less efficient and leave oily stains after their use.

Moths.—These are very destructive to clothes when not properly protected. Furs and woolens are particularly susceptible to the influence of moths. Thoroughly brush and clean the clothes before they are put away for the summer. Pack them in large paper bags or boxes, which should be made air tight by sealing the edges with strips of paper. Wardrobes should be free of dust and thoroughly cleaned. Moth preventive or tar balls should be freely distributed in trunks, closets and in the pockets of clothes. It is also a good plan to unpack these clothes occasionally during the summer and give them an adequate airing in the sun.

Flies.—Keep the garbage pail covered tightly. Fly paper freely distributed will be a great help in destroying them. A solution of potassium bichromate (one teaspoonful to two ounces of sugared water) or a few drops of formalin in sweetened water will kill flies when placed where they can drink.

Mosquitoes.—Burning a pyrethrum powder or sulphur will stupefy them. They then fall to the floor and can be burned with the sweepings. Do not allow any water to accumulate in barrels, pans, buckets, on the roof of any part of the house, as mosquitoes breed readily in standing water.

THE SHARK INVASION.

Why These Dangerous Fish Have Left Their Old Haunts.

Apropos of sharks, says a contributor to the New York World, in the opinion of many of the merchant marine officials the present influx of them to our shores is due to several reasons: First, disturbing conditions attributed to the war in Europe, whereby they are driven from their native haunts and seek new quarters. The large number of horse ships attract them, the sharks following them often for days. When a ship loses, say, fifty horses in one voyage, one can easily see the reason for this. Emboldened by noninterference, they have made their appearance in large numbers off the coast of France and even in the Mediterranean sea, a thing unheard of hitherto.

These remarks are the summing up of many British officers in the merchant marine service engaged in carrying large cargoes of supplies for the allies.

Under the circumstances it would seem reasonable to expect these monsters to appear on our shores just as long as the cause of their presence exists, and, while it may interest the learned scientists to offer many interesting reasons for it, the fact still remains the same.

How to Protect Grapes From Birds and Insects.

Grapes may be protected from birds and insects by tying up the clusters in paper bags. Ordinary bags from the grocery store are sufficient, one being slipped over each bunch of grapes and made fast with soft twine. Perfect grapes can be grown in this way, and they will ripen a little earlier than otherwise. Bees are sometimes held responsible for damage to grapes, but they are falsely accused. Birds make the holes, and the bees simply feed on the juice that is exuded.

KINGSTON, N. Y., SEPT. 14, 1916.

Mr. Hughes has made his position clear in favor of a tariff to protect American industries from foreign competition, a competition which threatens to be of the keenest at the end of the war in Europe. He states that if elected President his first message to Congress will ask the enactment of a protective tariff measure whose provisions shall be based upon the findings of experts and without special privileges for anybody or any group of manufacturers. Mr. Hughes stands for duties based upon expert information as to conditions of American labor and of competing labor in foreign countries. He wants protection to such a degree as to assure general prosperity rather than prosperous times for a favored few. This is sound Republican principle. Opposed to this in theory and yet occasionally favoring it in practice, as in the dyestuffs provision, the attitude of the Democrats is founded on the argument that the tariff is a tax and that duties on any other than a revenue basis only serve to increase by so much, the cost of the article in the American market. The absurdity of their theory as worked out in that masterpiece of the Wilson administration, the Underwood law, has been clearly demonstrated since the passage of the measure, during which period articles on the free list have soared in price to a remarkable degree and the only explanation offered, "the war," fails to explain the phenomena to the satisfaction of consumers. The cost of living is a subject concededly beyond Democratic control, even if the promises in the Baltimore platform were put there for any other purpose than to catch votes.

When the high cost of living was the cause of such turgid streams of eloquence from Democratic fountainheads, the enlightened prophets in session at Baltimore pledged the people that with the restoration of free trade food prices would automatically fall, but nothing of the kind happened. The prices that prevailed after the passage of the Underwood law and before and after the outbreak of the European war proved the futility of such contentions. The claim of the Democrats that cutting off the duty on an article reduces the price by just that amount cannot stand the practical test of experience. Only a few years ago a great hue and cry went up the country over for the removal of the duty on hides in order to cheapen the cost of the raw material used in the manufacture of shoes, but the removal of the duty was accompanied by an immediate advance in the cost of hides which has continued ever since. The explanation lies in the fact that the world's demand for hides increases faster than the supply. The removal of the duty discouraged production at home, thus increasing the home demand for the lessening world supply. Hides advanced in price and the removal of the duty had the opposite effect to what the Democrats predicted. The same is true of news print paper, on which publishers demanded a removal of the duty. This was done and imports of this paper from Canada jumped from 54,000 tons in 1911 to 366,921 tons in 1915. A few days before the adjournment of Congress Senator Hughes, Democrat, tried to amend the revenue bill to place a duty of 12 per cent ad valorem on news print. This was done simply because of the fact that free trade has practically stopped the growth of the print paper industry at home and we have become more and more dependent upon Canada. Today the country is facing a serious famine in the news print paper which might have been averted had the industry been encouraged at home instead of being diverted to Canada. Small wonder is it that the Democrats in 1916 are telling us that the tariff is no longer an issue of importance.

Because of the difference in viewpoint it is not often that the people of the North can express sincere satisfaction with political developments in the South, but the South Carolina primaries furnish a notable exception to the rule. In the "run off" between the two leading Democratic candidates in the preliminary primary, Former Governor Cole L. Blease went down to defeat before Governor Richard I. Manning, after a most vigorous contest. The recrudescence of Blease, whose executive exploits reflected so discreditably on his State, was threatened as a result of the initial caucus, when he led a field of four candidates, but it is plain that there are limits of decency beyond which even the Democratic party in South Carolina will not go. It is an encouraging sign in a most encouraging period of returning popular sanity to see a former executive of the calibre of Blease go down to defeat. South Carolina is coming to the front. They are even talking favorably of a protective tariff down there. But no change for the better in the state of the public mind could have been more clearly illustrated than in the defeat of Blease the brazen and all that he stood for in State government.

So He Paid the Conductor.

The Atchison Globe prints this story, which it admits is "old." A prominent business man who made many trips on the Rock Island always paid cash fare to the conductor instead of buying a ticket. Finally the conductor asked him why he always paid excess on the train rather than buy a ticket. "Well," said the business man, "years ago the Rock Island gave me a dirty deal on a freight shipment, and I then took a solemn vow that never again would the Rock Island get any of my money."

Breaking It Easy.

An Ohio man was having a lot of trouble piloting a one-tent show through the Middle West. He lost a number of valuable animals by accident and otherwise. Therefore it was with a sympathetic mien that one of the keepers undertook the task of breaking the news of another disaster. He began thus: "Mr. Smith you remember, that laughin' hyena in cage nine?" Remember the laughing hyena?" demanded the owner, angrily. "What the deuce are you driving at?" "Only this, Mr. Smith. He ain't got nothing to laugh at this morning."—Brooklyn Citizen.

A number of young married couples, all good friends and congenial spirits, met at the home of one of the coterie in Albany the other day, and there arose a discussion as to various matters of domestic character. Finally the subject of meals, that bugbear to many young housekeepers, came up, and ways of arranging different dishes were passed in review. Finally one of the young wives asked the question. "How do you prepare hash?" For an instant there was no reply. Then, instead of leaving the ladies to settle the question in their own way, the graceless husband of the inquirer spoke up: "Hash! How do you prepare hash? Hash isn't prepared. It is accumulated." And after a few moments' reflection those gifted young housewives agreed that the recipe was sufficiently accurate for all practical purposes.

Facial Measurement.

A teacher one day asked her class if they knew which was the longest word in the English language. A small hand waved frantically.

"Well, Johnny, what is the longest word?"

"Smiles," promptly answered Johnny.

"But that has only six letters!"

Otherwise Allright.

Old Mr. Caswell was an inveterate horse-trader and also a good deal of a wag.

One day he swapped a decidedly disreputable-looking nag and after the deal was consummated he said: "Now, sir, I'll tell yer fair an' square. That horse has got two faults."

"Yes, and more, two, I guess," assented the other. "But what are the two you mention?"

"Well," confided old Caswell slowly, "if he gits out in th' field he's th' hardest horse to ketch ye ever see, an' when he ketch him he ain't worth a cuss."—National Monthly.

ALABAMA CONVICT MINES BARBAROUS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 14.—Convict life in the mines of Alabama can find a comparison only in the description of the life of Russian convicts exiled to Siberia. Grand jury investigation has just disclosed deplorable conditions.

Two instances are cited, one where a convict was forced to work with a broken arm and another where a convict suffering with heart trouble was compelled to labor in the mines until he dropped dead.

It was also learned through the investigation that convicts were told they could "pay out" for $200. No matter how shocking or enormous the crime they had committed or how many years they had been sentenced to serve, it is said, the convicts were assured the warden would get them a pardon upon the payment of $200.

The investigation was carried on in Bibb county, where the state conducts a coal mine. A report has been filed with Governor Henderson, who it is expected will go into the matter more fully and a shakeup in the convict system of the state, with prosecutions, will probably follow.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Sept. 14.—Rev. J. C. Coddington, pastor of the M. E. Church here, occupied his pulpit and was welcomed by a good sized congregation both morning and evening last Sunday. He has been in Ocean Grove for nearly two weeks and was a regular attendant to the Billy Sunday services and preached a sermon giving a grand description of this wonderful evangelist and his words and works. He gave a grand sermon. This Billy Sunday is a wonderful preacher. Many think he is daffy on religion. If more people in this place, as well as other places, were daffy on this subject we would see our churches filled at all services. A good many attend church because it adds some to their respectability and think it gives them a better hold on society. If religion was more prevalent there would not be so many ready to criticize the minister and the people as to what they wear or do or say. There would be more unity and the people would not be so anxious to knock everyone and their work. The proper thing is for us all to have no malice against anyone. Let us nail our flags of resolution high and clinch the nails on the mast. Then we would be better citizens and more loyal to the church. We were glad to hear Rev Coddington talk about this wonderful Billy Sunday and only wish this place was large enough to get him here to just make the people over in the place and when he goes to New York there will be many who will go to hear him, and he certainly will want to make artillery preparation for that place as well as many other places where he goes, but no matter what conditions may be, Billy Sunday can fill any size tabernacle with people at every service.

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 14.—"We got whipped, and I guess that is all I will say about the Maine election. We got beaten good and plenty." This is the statement of Champ Clark, Democratic speaker of the house, a statement as honest and truthful as the sophistical distortions of Chairman Vance McCormick, Josephus Daniels and other illustrious Democrats are the reverse. Senator Vardaman of Mississippi appears to have lost his temper over the result and to find an outlet for his ill-nature in abusing the Progressives. His comment on the Maine election is characteristic. He says, "The Progressive sow has returned to her wallow." Judging by the comments of Progressives in New York, Mr. Vardaman has done nothing to make votes for Mr. Wilson among any Progressives who may have been undetermined as to how they would vote by his calling the Progressives swine, even though he may be credited with frankness in thus bluntly expressing the sentiment which Wilsonites generally entertain for the Progressives.

Maine Aftermath.

The one outstanding result in Maine, and it becomes the more evident as more detailed information is received, is that the Progressives have returned to the Republican party in such numbers as to insure the election of Mr. Hughes, of a Republican senate and a Republican house if the same percentage of return is maintained throughout the country. The Democratic contentions that Mr. Wilson would be reelected have all along been based on their belief that the Progressives of 1912 would split and that a considerable percentage would vote the Democratic ticket. Of course on no other ground could they predict a Democratic victory, because in 1912 Mr. Wilson received 1,300,000 fewer votes than the combined vote of Roosevelt and Taft. It is also highly significant that the Maine campaign was fought almost entirely on national issues. From a local standpoint the Democrats had the advantage because their candidate for governor had just given a satisfactory administration of that office, and the Republicans wisely refrained from any general attack on him. The chief effort of the Democrats was devoted to the election of the two senators, and their argument for the reelection of Senator Johnson was that he had voted for every Wilson measure. The Republicans concentrated their fire on every Wilson measure, and the voters appear to have voted against Johnson because he voted for every Wilson measure.

Labor Can't Be Bought.

The defeat of Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Democratic congressman from the Second district of Maine, is the first opportunity the people, and especially the labor men, have had to express their opinion of Mr. Wilson's course in compelling congress to enact the railway wage increase bill. Mr. McGillicuddy was a labor candidate, thrice elected by labor votes, who voted for the Wilson-Adamson bill, but that certainly did not save him. Of his defeat the New York Times, which is supporting President Wilson, says: "The lesson is evident. The labor vote is cast just as other votes are cast. Truckling to it, abasing one's party before it, does not win. The mechanics of Bath and Auburn voted on the issues of the day, just as did the farmers of Oxford county. Mr. Hughes's denunciations of the strike settlement, even his apparent hostility to the eight-hour principle, did not avail to arouse the unions of Sagadahoc against him." Of course the Times knows Mr. Hughes is not opposed to the eight hour principle. As governor he was strongly for it. What he does oppose is a simple effort to secure increased pay masquerading as a promotion of the eight-hour principle.

A Democrat on Wilson.

Hannis Taylor, prominent Democrat, writer on international law, former minister to Spain, liberal contributor to Mr. Wilson's campaign fund in 1912, and chairman of a great meeting which ratified Mr. Wilson's nomination in that year, has announced his intention of voting for Mr. Hughes. Mr. Taylor, explaining his reasons for refusing to support Wilson described Mr. Wilson as "an abnormally ambitious and dangerous revolutionist, with monarchial tendencies, striving to build up in this country, in his own selfish interest, a political dictatorship unfettered by all promises and covenants made by him in party platforms." He says "The old Democratic party has been abolished or superceded by a political dictatorship created by an arrogant usurper who has demonstrated his inability to play the pretentious role he prepared."

Wilson Jollies Mexicans.

With mellifluous rhetoric, President Wilson is still striving to conciliate the representatives of General Carranza into such measure of amiability as will permit of some sort of agreement to be reached at the New London conference, which will tide over the Mexican muddle until after the election. Called to New London by the serious illness of his sister, President Wilson called on the Mexicans and told them of his entire confidence in and sympathy with Carranza of his strong advocacy of those great fundamental principles of the new freedom for which Carranza is striving, of his detestation of the prosperous and educated classes in Mexico, etc. He told them that he was convinced that all right-thinking men the world over were in sympathy with Carranza, his lofty ideals, and noble aspirations. The social regeneration of Mexico, he declared, must come from within and he intimated that in his opinion Carranza was foreordained to work out Mexico's social and economic salvation. He diplomatically refrained from referring to the American soldiers shot at Carrizal by Caranza's express order, or to the hundreds of American citizens killed and the hundreds of American women outraged by the Carranzistas throughout Mexico. In a word, Mr. Wilson once more kissed the hand which had slapped his face and was "red with the blood of American men, women and children."

The Mexican Trump.

According to Washington advices, Mr. Wilson expects to play a trump card, late in October, which he is counting on to take all the cards in the political pack. He contemplates effecting an agreement through the New London delegates and a treaty with Carranza which will provide for the retreat of the American troops, afford an excuse for withdrawing the militia from the border and enable the administration to proclaim broadcast throughout the land that it has composed the Mexican difficulty, upheld the hands of Carranza in his efforts to work out Mexico's salvation and avoided war. By staging this piece of business late enough in the campaign, the Republicans, it is believed, will have no time left to puncture the beautiful bubble and expose its hollowness.

CHARGE BEER AS BREAD IS DEMAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Sept. 14.—The German lodges of the Good Templars, a temperance society with more than 80,000 members, have addressed the following open letter written by Privy Medical Councillor Dr. Bonne, a prominent physician of Klein-Flottbeck to Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg;

"Your Excellency's government has reduced the production of beer 52 per cent since the beginning of the war, but 2,100 tons of grain are still used daily for brewing purposes. This quantity of grain would be sufficient to feed ten million people.

"Undoubtedly Your Excellency knows that for the production of one quart of beer eight and a half ounces of barley are used and that the daily bread ration per head is only eight and one-tenth ounces. Barley is a bread grain, like rye and wheat, and must be saved as much as possible.

"If the government considers it necessary to keep the breweries in operation social justice demands that beer shall only be sold to holders of bread cards and that the consumers of this beverage shall receive correspondingly smaller quantities of bread.

"Such a measure, however, would be insufficient. In our opinion all danger of a shortage of bread grain and hunger can be easily removed by closing the breweries and distilleries until peace returns."

The Frankfurter Zeitung says in an editorial comment on the demand of the Good Templars;

"The proposition made in the letter to the chancellor is logical and deserves serious consideration. Against the demand that beer shall be classed with bread no valid objection can be made. An absolutely equal distribution of the bread grain is essential for the welfare of the nation, but under the present system the consumers of beer actually not only receive double rations of breadstuffs, but in many cases much more. If a man for instance drinks three quarts of beer daily he consumes 25.5 ounces of barley, or more than the bread rations for three persons.

"It is only logical that those who must have beer or rye whiskey shall have the quantities of these beverages used by them charged against their bread cards. People who do not drink beer or whiskey will then be able to receive larger bread rations.

"Under the plan of the Good Templars every person would simply have the choice to buy his or her share of breadstuffs in liquid or solid form."

The demand of the Good Templars is also supported by the Socialist newspaper Vorwaerts, the Catholic Cologne Volkszeitung and many other influential papers.

HURLEY.

Hurley, Sept. 14.—Mr. Myer, the trustee of our village school, announces that our school will open positively on Monday, October 2. Parents are requested to please keep the date in mind so that the school will open with a full attendance.

Richard Hiller is home for the rest of the month. He has a position with the Edison Lamp Works of the General Electric Company, Harrison, New Jersey.

Mrs. Anna Wynkoop is again up and about after the operation performed upon her eyes by Dr. Loughran. The operation was perfectly successful and both Mr. and Mrs. Wynkoop are proud of the results and are extremely grateful. Later with the fitting of glasses, the eyesight will be good.

Mrs. McPherson met with a severe accident on Saturday last, necessitating her confinement in bed. While crossing a room, her foot caught in a rug or a portiere curtain so that she fell and by sudden twisting, fractured her left hip. She suffers but little but is of course confined to bed. Mrs. McPherson is 84 years old and her numerous friends will sympathize with her in her affliction.

Our summer friends have nearly all left us excepting a few at the Brink homestead and at Mrs. Maxon's where Mr. Heinckel will remain with his wife for his vacation until October 1.

Miss "Polly" Bruyn is enjoying Hurley after a most interesting summer at a girls' camp in Maine.

Sunday school will resume sessions on Sunday, September 17.

Ray Smith, our latest benedict, has taken the Kauss house on Roosa Lane for the winter. As the committee on skimmingtons has yet made no report on the case, the exact date cannot be given.

James Schmidt and Fred Lockwood had a most interesting excursion at Overlook last Saturday and Sunday. Quite a party made up of young people, some from Marbletown spent those days on the mountain and are enthusiastic about their experiences. "My, it was cold" up there."

If You Are Seeking Reliability in

New Fall Silks and Dress Goods

Let Your Search End Here

We have been especially careful in the selection of our Silks and Dress goods this season, accepting only reliable merchandise.

Every price marked is the right price for the value and the grade. In fact, we are marking these goods at a closer margin than ever before. This does not mean that prices are lower than last year, for they are not.

This season it is a question of quality rather than price, and we have the quality.

The point is that in this store you are sure of your quality, because VanWagenen's sells no other kind. We believe that silks and dress goods are going even higher. We feel that it is the part of wisdom for those who require silks to buy them now—this month, this week.

Full of color and of snappy style, too, is this out-of-door costume for October and November days. Heavy silk hersey in gray, crossbarred with orange, is the material, and there are facings of orange kid on cuff and collar. The black beaver sailor hat, and white gloves and boots make a smart contrast with the sport suit.

OUR GOVERNMENT A FAMILY AFFAIR

Relatively Speaking, "Deserving Democrats" Look After Their Own at Washington—A List of Places in First Family Circles.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—(Special)—Not only have "deserving Democrats" been given fat government jobs wherever possible by the Wilson administration, but the "Poor Relations" of Democratic cabinet officers, senators and representatives have also been well taken care of.

Nepotism is rife in the government service and at the capital.

Never before in the history of this country has nepotism been so rampant as under Mr Wilson's administration.

To begin with the cabinet. When William J. Bryan was secretary of the state he had his son appointed to a position in the department of justice and his son-in-law to a position in the treasury department. Secretary McAdoo, son-in-law of President Wilson, put one of his sons in the department of justice and one in the department of commerce. Secretary Daniels got a place for his brother in the department of justice. Former First Assistant Postmaster General Daniel C Roper, who recently resigned to assist in the Wilson campaign, at one time had three members of his family on the pay rolls. Secretary Redfield appointed U Grant Smith his private secretary. Smith had one son on the pay roll as a house page and his son-in-law is a special agent of the department of commerce.

In the house of representatives Speaker Clark's son is the parliamentary clerk at $4,000 per annum. He is not yet thirty and was given this job by the Democratic house majority before he had finished his law studies.

Senators Also Thoughtful.

Numerous Democratic senators have taken good care of their "poor kin" with fat jobs on the government pay roll. Senator Overman, of North Carolina, has his son in a $2,500 position and a daughter holds a $1,400 job. A brother-in-law of Senator Kern of Indiana has a good place in the senate document room. The wife and brother of Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, are on the senate pay roll. Senator Martin, of Virginia, has a brother as assistant clerk to his committee. Senator Vardaman, of Mississippi, has his son assistant clerk to his committee. Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, has his son a messenger in his committee. The son-in-law of Senator Lane, of Oregon, acts as his father-in-law's private secretary. The son of Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, is the clerk in his father's committee. Another son is on the Alaska railroad commission. Senator Thompson, of Kansas, has his son on the pay roll. A cousin of Senator Saulsbury, of Delaware, was given a good job on the trade commission. Senator O'Gorman, of New York, landed the job of collector of the Port of New York, for his son-in-law. Dudley Field Malone. The nephew of Senator Robinson is a senate doorkeeper.

Commendable Charity.

The most glaring example of nepotism are found in the house and more "poor relations" have been taken care of in the house than in the senate, simply because there are more representatives than there are senators. Take Illinois for example. Tavenner's sister-in-law is his stenographer. Stone's brother is a clerk in the house document room. Sabath's nephew is also in the document room. Indiana Democrats have not overlooked appointing members of their families to good places. Gray's sister is his secretary. Cullop's stepson is his secretary. Morrion's son is his secretary.

Representative Pou of North Carolina, for a time had his son on the pay roll as the clerk of the committee on claims, drawing $1,600 per annum. Young Pou at this time was a student in the University of North Carolina. Representative Johnson, of South Carolina, got one of his sons in the postoffice department and another a house job. A nephew was made clerk to a house committee and a representatives's campaign manager was made a capital policeman. Representative Finley, of South Carolina, has his son as his secretary and another son is a clerk on the house roll. Representative Aiken, of South Carolina employs his son as his secretary, his nephew is in the sergeant-at-arms office. Representative Clark, of Florida, has two relatives on his committee and got a door keeper's job for his brother. The son of Representative Padgett is the assistant clerk of his father's committee. The son of Representative Burnett is clerk of his father's committee. The son of Representative Carlin, though a student in Georgetown University, is a clerk in the house judiciary committee. A nephew of Representative Shackleford is clerk to the committee on roads.

Lloyd Has a Record.

Representative Lloyd, of Missouri, has a brother in the committee on accounts, and his brother-in-law is an assistant doorkeeper in the house. At one time Lloyd had five members of his family on the pay roll. Representative Watkins, has his son as clerk to a committee. Representative Chandler has his son-in-law as his secretary. Representative Alexander, of Missouri, has his son as his secretary and so has Representative Hardy of Texas. The son of Representative Sparkman is clerk to his father's committee, and the brother of Representative Fields is his secretary. The father of Representative Barkley, is one of the doorkeepers.

Poor Relations Aplenty.

This list might be extended at great length for there are scores of "poor relations" of senators and representatives, drawing good salaries on government pay rolls. On August 14th the Chicago Daily Tribune published a partial list of the examples of nepotism described in this story. No denial has ever been made of the Tribune's charges regarding the fat government jobs that have been given to "poor relations" of the Democratic congressmen for the simple reason that it is not possible to make denial.

BARTLETT TO TRY FOR POLE AGAIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 14.—Captain Robert A. Bartlett, companion of Peary on the trip when the latter, with a negro, reached the North Pole, announced today he has pledges of $85,000 for a new project in the Arctic regions.

He proposes to let a ship be frozen up in the Arctic region and then drift toward the Pole across a part of the earth never before explored. For this he needs about an equal amount beside that already promised.

"I desire to superintend the construction of a wooden vessel of about 550 tons, especially for Arctic work," he said today. "We would start in May, 1918, northward through Behring Strait, go eastward off the northern coast of Alaska to about 130 west longitude, and latitude 74 or 75, or even farther north; let the vessel freeze up and go with the ice drift through the great unexplored Arctic regions. There are more than a million square miles of unexplored territory in the Arctic Ocean.

"I would take only eight men with me on the trip, preferably young college men. While we drifted we would take soundings and use a deep sea dredge to gather the flora and fauna from the floor of the ocean.

"Instead of regular steam engines and boilers, requiring the consumption of coal, I will install a Bolinger crude oil engine, thus doing away with the necessity of engineers and firemen.

"From my knowledge of the Arctic regions and the currents of general drift of the ice, I should say that we would drift for about five years before reaching civilization again, but we might do it in three years. I would provision the ship for five or six years, and that would be easy with only nine men to provide for. The general drift would be to the west and I should say that we would eventually come out either between Greenland and Spitzbergen, or between Spitzbergen and Franz Josef Land.

"It is possible that we would discover new land during our travels. We would take about a hundred dogs and what sledges we required for exploration. The dogs would be fed on bear meat and fish, of both of which we would have no difficulty in getting all we required. Our own principal meat would be bear and seal. Of course, we would have canned meats with our provisions, but I have never cared much for them in Arctic work. Seal meat is delicious and the polar bear meat is good, too—very like pork."

Captain Bartlett ran away to sea when a boy, and has lived most of his life since on sealers, whalers and in Arctic explorations. He is forty years old.

U. S. NAVY PLANS INTEREST JAPAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tokyo, Sept. 14.—The voting of an impressive naval preparedness program by the United States Congress has been intently noted in Japan, and first impressions, as voiced in the Tokyo press, are that it will be impossible for Japan to compete in naval construction with the boundless resources of the United States.

The influential commercial organ, the Chugwai Shogyo, urges that a convention should be made with the United States similar to that recently arranged with Russia in order to settle the relations of the two nations.

The Kokumin, which is intensely nationalistic and chauvinist, believes that the reply should be an increased Japanese program.

The naval estimates will not be known until the Diet meets towards the close of the year, but the plans of the navy department, which are now before the finance department for approval, provide for the completion within seven years of what is known as the "eight and four" program—eight super-dreadnaughts and four battlecruisers.

The four battlecruisers are already in existence and five superdreadnaughts are either completed or under construction, so there remain to complete the program three super-dreadnaughts and 11 light cruisers, 48 destroyers and 16 submarines.

The "eight and four" plan, it should be understood, is a modification of an "eight and eight" plan urged by the navy but reduced to "eight and four" for financial reasons.

Naval circles still believe in the "eight and eight" and probably expect to get the program up to that figure before the period expires. Their opinions are practically impossible to translate into action in this country where the bureaucracy rules.

The Chugwai Shogyo is the paper of the business men and is progressive and moderate in most of its views. Safety first, it says, is the idea which governs the mind of Americans these days and this has led to the shortening of the warship construction period from five years to three. The naval program is truly American in that it is very big. One of its reasons is the fear of a Japanese invasion and the necessity of making the Pacific fleet as powerful as the Atlantic, apart from the uncertain degree of mobility conferred by the Panama Canal.

Japanese naval expansion has helped to call this anxiety into being, and though the Chugwai Shogyo repeats that Japan's naval program has nothing to do with the invasion of America it admits that from the American point of view Japanese naval expansion may have the appearance of being intended for aggression. If Japan should in turn regard the United States program as directed against Japan mutual suspicion will grow into a nightmare, the paper continues, and a situation will be created similar to that which existed between England and Germany.

"This will be very detrimental," the paper comments. "America is rich, while we are not, and it will be impossible for us to compete."

It goes on to point out that in the past Japan's armament programs have worked out badly, as for instance the increase of the army last year by two divisions directed against Russia and now seen to be as useless as the Great Wall of China on account of the Russo-Japanese alliance.

Would it not be better, the article concludes, for Japan to avoid being scared by American preparations and to conclude a Japan-American Convention in order to secure the peace of the world?

The Kokumin article is written by the editor of that paper, Tokutomi, a Christian, a well known man of letters, a member of the House of Peers and an intimate friend of Count Terauchi, the leader of bureaucratic influences in Japan. He has been discussing America a great deal of late and his conclusion that Japan must increase her armed strength follows his conviction that the Americans are not a peaceful nation.

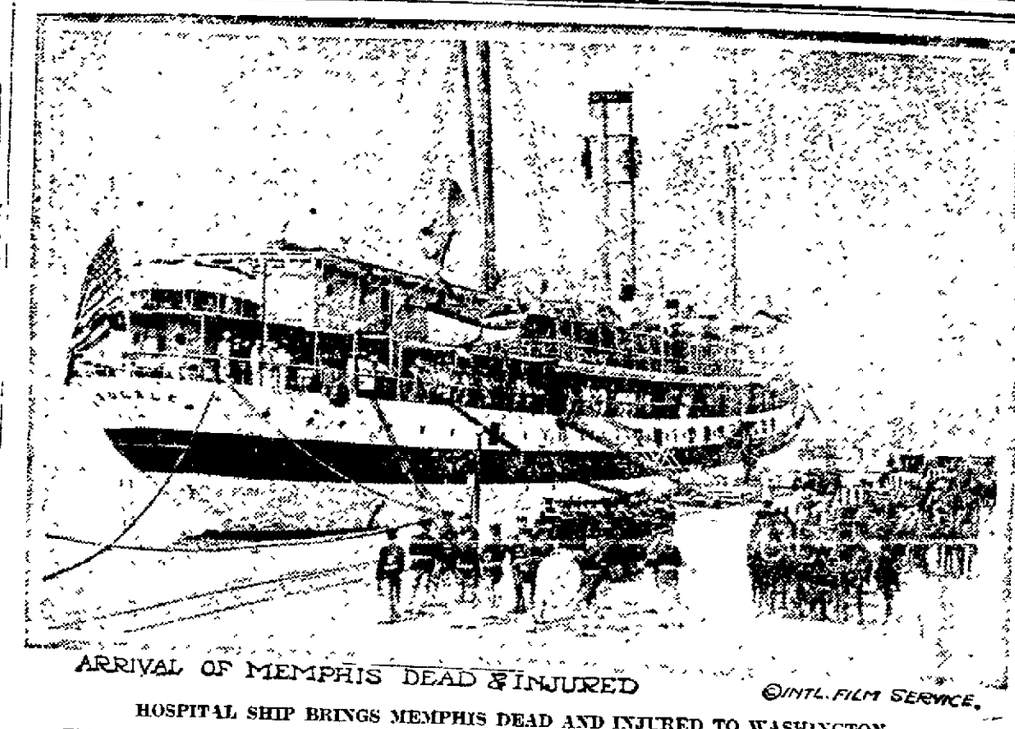

He points out that the cry for national preparedness forms almost the sole issue of the American presidential election. The enthusiasm for arming the nation has been aroused partly by the European war but it is a great mistake to suppose that American preparedness is directed only against England and Germany. No matter how much Americans may speak of the Atlantic their hearts are filled with the Pacific problem.

"We do not mean to say," he goes on, "that America is arousing public opinion with a view to the conquest of Japan. We do not live in the age of Perry and the United States may not send a big fleet to present demands, but if Americans take a fancy they can easily find methods to break our patience and challenge Japan to a fight.

"We do not say they have that fancy just now, but if they thought they could drive Japan out of the Pacific, would they hold their big fleet in check and watch with their fingers in their mouths?

"America in her naval policy," he continues, "commenced a few years ago to increase speed. Her plan of building large destroyers, large submarines, and powerful supply ships, proves that America is seeking a distant enemy. Can you call that a defensive plan. America is preparing even now to cross the Pacific Ocean with her big fleet, he asserts. He declares he has no bad feeling against the United States.

America is the richest nation today, he says, and if America and Japan are to maintain navies of equal strength it will cause no uneasiness to America but it will be a great annoyance to Japan, which is poor. If Japanese national existence is in question that annoyance must be endured.

HOSPITAL SHIP BRINGS MEMPHIS DEAD AND INJURED TO WASHINGTON.

This picture shows the U. S. Naval hospital ship Solace, docked at the Washington Navy Yard, after bringing back the dead and injured from the wrecked cruiser Memphis, which was dashed ashore on the rocks at Santo Domingo City last month.

The coffins of the dead sailors, wrapped in American flags are shown on gun caissons, alongside the ship. They were escorted through the streets of the national capital with military honors. The bodies were then shipped to relatives of the men who lost their lives.

Some of the injured were taken off the ship, while others remained aboard.

The Solace was one day out of Santo Domingo when the Memphis grounded and was recalled by wireless.

An Old English Handbill

advertised a public warning about coffee in its early days as a beverage in England. It said:

"You are not to drink it after supper unless you intend to be watchful, for it will hinder sleep for three or four hours."

That was 250 years ago. Today it is a well-known fact that sleeplessness, brought on by coffee drinking, is due to the presence of the drug, caffeine, in coffee. It is also known that coffee drinking is a common cause of various other ills.

THEATER UP TO RULES COMMITTEE

Laws and Rules Committee of City Fathers Hear Arguments For and Against Proposed Cohen Theater on Wall Street, and Reserve Decision.

The committee on laws and rules of the common council on Wednesday evening at the city hall gave a hearing in the matter of whether an ordinance should be adopted by the city fathers prohibiting the erection of a theater within two hundred feet of any church. The committee had invited the vestry of St. John's Church and also those interested in the Cohen theater project to be present at the hearing and give their reasons as to why it should be built or not, and a large number interested in the question were present at the hearing. Virgil B. Van Wagonen appeared for the theater interests while Howard Chipp appeared for the vestry of the church. They were the only two that spoke. At the close of the hearing the committee announced it would reserve decision on the question and would take the matter up with the corporation counsel.

Alderman Brown presided at the hearing and the other members of the law committee present were Aldermen Smith, Shultis and Leverich. Mayor Canfield was also present as were Aldermen Fischer and Connelly. Owing to the large attendance the hearing was held in the council chambers instead of the mayor's office as planned.

Mayor Canfield read the following memorial, "We, the undersigned, having read the resolution passed by the vestry of St. John's Episcopal Church of the city protesting against the maintenance of the proposed Cohen theater in close proximity to said church, do hereby express our sympathy and approval of such resolution and do earnestly request the common council to enact an ordinance prohibiting the maintenance of theatrical or other like performances within two hundred feet of any church or house of religious worship in the city as requested in such resolutions."

It was signed by the Rev. James L Leeper of the First Dutch Church, the Rev. T. H. Baragwanath of St. James's M. E. Church, the Rev. Arthur S. Cole of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, the Rev. George M. Cranston of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church, the Rev. P. C. Weyant of the Trinity M. E Church, the Rev. Charles G. Ellis of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, the Rev R. C. Dodds of the First Presbyterian Church, the Rev. A. K. Fuller of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, the Rev. John P. Neumann of St Peter's Church, the Rev. John J Bott of the Church of the Holy Spirit, the Rev. John J. Hickey of St. Mary's Church, the Rev. W. F. Stowe of the Church of the Comforter, and the Rev. Thomas B. Brown of St. Joseph's Church.

The memorial was filed with the committee.

Blue Prints Show Position.

Mr. Van Wagonen, who appeared for the theater interests, was the first speaker. He had a number of blue prints prepared which he distributed to the committee and others interested. The blue print showed that the Wolven store would be transformed into a store ten feet wide and the remaining fifteen feet of width would be used for a lobby. This lobby ran the entire length of St. John's Church and according to the blue print the theater itself would be entirely in the rear of the church. After he had explained the blue print Mr. Van Wagonen went on to say that nothing by way of advertising or display would be made at the entrance to the lobby on Wall street, but whatever display of posters was made would be inside the lobby, and there would be nothing objectionable on Wall street. There is a proposed rear entrance to the theater which will be used for carrying in and out the necessary stage scenery and effects used by the theatrical companies. This rear entrance was on Crown street and would do away with unloading scenery on Wall street. He called attention also to the fact that the theater corporation had acquired title to the property. Kingston had long felt the need of a more modern theater and the present project had its inception with the business men of Kingston, and it was upon their solicitation that Mr. Cohen was induced to promote the project, and he had no reason for knowing there would be any objection made to the erection of the theater. When St. John's Church was built about eighty years ago the block was sparsely settled, but now it is the heart of the business section of the city.

No Sunday Performances.

Mr. Van Wagonen also called attention to the fact that there would be no Sunday performances and the theater would not be used on that day except for some charitable or religious purpose. There will also be no performances during Holy Week. In closing he said that Mr. Cohen was well known throughout the Hudson Valley as a reputable business man, and the committee should bear in mind that the proposed theater would cost thousands of dollars and under the present plans he could not see where it would interfere with or detract from the church services.

Mr. Chipp Speaks.

Mr. Chipp said he had been requested to appear by the vestry of St. John's Church, and from the memorial read signed by the various clergy of the city it was evident that he represented the entire religious sentiment of the city against the proposed theater. He said that he did not suppose Kingston was in need of another theater as there had been one on Wall street and it had been burned down. He had supposed the inspiration of the proposed theater had come from Mr. Cohen who had interested the business men of Wall street, and not the business men who had inspired Mr. Cohen. Promises are always made, said he, referring to Mr. Van Wagonen's remarks regarding the performances at the theater. He said that he had no doubt but Mr. Van Wagonen was stating Mr. Cohen's attitude at the present time, but can such promises be kept?

To Protect Every Church.

A theater will detract from the church and its usefulness. That was why the church was asking the common council to pass such an ordinance as requested, as it would mean the protection of not only St. John's Church, but every church in the city. He said the St. John's Church was one of the oldest church edifices in the upper part of the city.

Church Can't Move.

It is useless to urge that St. John's Church can move. It can not. It has a valuable property, and it is not practical to suggest that the church move. This proposed ordinance is within the competence of the common council as it has power to act in just such cases under the city charter.

Respects Religion.

Mr. Van Wagonen said he had all respect for religious institutions and religion but we are met with a religious sentiment that has sprung up here. Very few of the clergy who signed that memorial read have any idea where the theater is to be built and signed it as a matter of sentiment.

A Religious Sentiment.

If you enact an ordinance such as proposed you are discriminating in favor of a religious sentiment. Mr. Van Wagonen raised five legal objections to the adoption of any such proposed ordinance

Legal Objections.

The objections were:

First—It is violative of our federal and state constitution in the respects that it impairs contract obligations and deprives us of our property (preventing our using it for a legal purpose).

Second—The proposed ordinance is not designed to prevent or abate a public or a private nuisance, but is designed to destroy the lawful use of private property for a lawful purpose.

Third—The proposed ordinance would operate in unlawful restraint of a lawful business, and the enjoyment of a common right.

Fourth—The proposed ordinance is not a valid exercise of police powers designed to promote or protect the general public health, morals or safety, but is discriminatory and designed to further the unreasonable demands of a private institution or of private persons.

Fifth—The proposed ordinance is not designed to regulate but is an unreasonable and oppressive instrument designed to prohibit the proper use of private property for a lawful purpose.

Theater Needs a License.

Mr Chipp said a man can not be deprived of property without due process of law. The theater interests have the property, but the theater had not been built. When a man determines to build a theater he knows he must secure a license before he can give a performance, and the common council has the right to refuse such a license and so it would not be a violation of the constitutional rights as urged by Mr. Van Wagonen.

Mr. Chipp said he was perfectly willing to leave all questions of law and the power of the common council to adopt the proposed ordinance to the corporation counsel.

What Will be Done.

There being no others to speak the committee announced it would take the question under advisement and consult with the corporation counsel, and decide later. The committee, of course, will make its report whether favorable or unfavorable to the proposed ordinance to the common council at its next meeting.

"ENOCH ARDENS" MANY IN FRANCE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Sept. 14.—There is a notable multiplication of domestic dramas of the type familiar through Tennyson's "Enoch Arden," and Balzac's "Celonel Chabert," who lost on a Napoleonic battlefield, returned home to find his wife remarried to a nobleman of the Restoration.

Thus, a Madame D——, of Arras, was informed at the beginning of the war that her husband had been killed. Removing to Paris she waited some months, and then married her brother-in-law. The household is now expecting a child, and the first husband is on his way back from Germany.

Charles le Goffic cites other cases in "La Liberte." He says:

"In a small commune near the channel two soldiers' wives remarried in this way. The death of their first husbands was registered, and all the papers were in order. But these husbands reappeared one fine morning, both of them with amputated limbs.

"More curious is the tale of the Breton soldier, whose arm, cut off by a shell was found on the battlefield, while the rest of him had disappeared. As the arm carried the identification plate, its owner was reported dead. The wife received a certificate to this effect, and was permitted to remarry. The first husband, however, proves to be alive, and inclined to insist on his rights."

But the most unfortunate of these tragic misadventures was found in Switzerland recently, in one of the parties of seriously wounded soldiers returned from Germany. A French visitor stopped before a fellow whose face was so disfigured as to seem no longer human. He asked if he could do anything for the sufferer, if he could seek his family and tell them.

"Useless," was the reply. "He is dead."

The soldier had risen to the heroic delicacy of deciding that, rather than horrify those he loved, he would leave them to believe him dead.

There is a ray of light, in this case, for the surgeons hold out hope of a great improvement, and if it is accomplished their patient will give up his name and come to life again. "But perhaps," adds M. le Goffic, "it may be then too late."

It is said there are 70,000 French prisoners in Germany who have not been able to communicate with their families. The French law requires ten months of widowhood before remarriage. The question is being asked whether this delay should not be extended, and Henri Robert, the eminent pleader, is one of those who think that soldiers' wives should not remarry before the end of the war.

PRINCE MAHIDOL OF SONGKLA.

BROTHER OF KING OF SIAM TO ENTER HARVARD.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 14.—Royalty, real blue blooded royalty, will be represented at Harvard this year in the person of Prince Mahidol of Songkla, the fourth of the younger brothers of the present King of Siam.

The Prince traveled through this country by way of Hawaii, where he had an unpleasant experience with the United States customs officials in Honolulu. The prince is decidedly Oriental in cast of countenance and the officials mistook him for a Japanese. He expostulated and was given a bit of rough treatment, but passed it off as a joke.

The prince holds title to a town and district half way down the Malay peninsula between the south of China and the Bay of Bengal. At one time he was a cadet on a German naval training ship.

Dr. Charles W. Pilgrim, superintendent of the Hudson River State Hospital at Poughkeepsie, was on Wednesday appointed president of the State Lunacy Commission by Governor Whitman. The salary is $9,000 a year. Dr. Pilgrim takes the vacancy created by Dr. James V. May's resignation. Dr. Pilgrim is fifty-seven years old and has been head of the Poughkeepsie and other hospitals twenty-three years.

Hope.

A woman took her husband to a noted alienist for what seemed to be a beginning psychosis and to decide whether he should be placed in a sanitarium. After a lengthy consultation she drew the physician aside and asked him impatiently for his verdict. He responded, "There are hopes, madam, but it is at present only a surmise."—Medical Pickwick.

Republican Primary Candidate for United States Senator

WHY YOU SHOULD

Cast Your Primary Vote for

WILLIAM M. CALDER

BECAUSE—The welfare of New York State and Nation absolutely requires the election of a Republican Senator.

BECAUSE—He is the strongest, best equipped and most popular candidate and if nominated will be elected.

BECAUSE—He is a successful business man with a splendid record of ten years of effective public service in Congress.

BECAUSE—He is an ardent champion of a protective tariff and is a thorough student of revenue legislation. He served in Congress during the enactment of two tariff measures.

BECAUSE—23 of the 24 Republican Representatives now in Congress from the State of New York, who know the high character of his services, endorse his candidacy.

BECAUSE—In 1912 he was the only Republican elected to any office in the southern part of the State. From 1910 to 1914 he was the only Republican Member of Congress from Greater New York;—overwhelming proof of his character and qualifications.

BECAUSE—He has always advocated Protection and Preparedness, for our homes, our business, and our country.

AVOID TYPHOID FEVER!

USE ONLY PASTEURIZED MILK

Eight of the nine cases of Typhoid Fever reported to the Board of Health are on the milk route of one of the dealers of Kingston who sells raw milk. It is another instance of the dangers of infection that is likely to be found in raw milk. All authorities agree that properly pasteurized milk is the only safe milk to be used. Our people have been cautioned over and over again against using raw milk. Mr. Nathan Strauss who supplies a large amount of properly pasteurized milk at his many stations in New York city publishes a letter to the effect that not a child using his milk has contracted infantile paralysis, because his milk is properly pasteurized.

MOVED THE LOGGAN STONE.

Then He Had the Costly Job of Moving It Back Again.

Do you know what happens to the iconoclast who attempts to prove to the world that there is nothing in its pet superstition? Did you ever hear the story of the British naval lieutenant who demonstrated the fact that there was nothing supernatural about the Loggan stone? Out there at the tip of Land's End, close to where the pirate of Penzance used to hold forth, the huge mass of rock rested on the top of the cliff, so delicately poised that a child could make it rock this way and that. A gust of wind would set it to vibrating, and yet for hundreds of years it had been believed that no earthly force could dislodge it from its position. Then along came the lieutenant, who laughed at all such silly superstition. He would prove to the deluded people of Cornwall that the Loggan stone could be dumped into the sea by the physical prowess of a few sturdy sailors.

Luckily for his position in the navy of his majesty, George IV, the lieutenant succeeded only in hurling the charmed rock a little way down the cliff, where it lodged in a shelving crevice, for such a howl went up, not only from the guides and tavern people who made a living off of the tourists who came to see the quivering bowlder, but from the antiquaries and scientists who believed that the rock had been deliberately poised there by the druid priests, or that it illustrated a little understood force of nature, that the admiralty sent word to the impious young officer that he would either restore the Loggan stone to its place or forfeit his. A derrick and a month's salary were required to set the stone in its place.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

ANTIQUITY OF CHEESE.

The Bible Mentions It, as Do Homer and Other Early Writers.

Cheese and curdling of the milk are mentioned in the book of Job. David was sent by his father, Jesse, to carry ten cheeses to the camp and to look how his brother fared. "Cheese of kine" formed part of the supplies of David's army at Mahanaim during the rebellion of Absalom.

Homer says that cheese formed part of the ample stores found by Ulysses in the cave of the Cyclop Polyphemus. Euripides, Theocritus and other early poets mention cheese. Ludolphus says that excellent cheese and butter were made by the ancient Ethiopians, and Strabo states that some of the ancient Britons were so ignorant that, though they had abundance of milk, they did not understand the art of making cheese.

There is no evidence that any of these ancient nations had discovered the use of rennet in making cheese. They appear to have merely allowed the milk to sour and subsequently to have formed the cheese from the caseous part of the milk after expelling the serum or whey.

As David when too young to carry arms was able to run to the camp with ten cheeses, ten loaves and an ephah of parched corn, the cheeses must have been very small.

The Dairy as a Temple.

The people called the Todas, living in the Nilgiri hills, India, have a curious religious ritual evolved out of the ordinary operations of the dairy. The priest is the dairyman, and the temple is the dairy. Only the milk of the sacred buffalo is churned in the dairy temple. The milk of buffaloes that are not "sacred" is churned in the front part of the huts in which the people live. The dairy temples are of different degrees of sanctity, corresponding to the different degrees of sanctity of the buffaloes tended in each. Even the vessels used in a dairy temple vary in sanctity, those that contain the milk being more sacred than those that only receive the products of the churning.

The Sea Wolf.

Among the most destructive inhabitants of the ocean is the sea wolf, a kind of dolphin, which attains when full grown a length of fourteen feet. When a mother walrus sees a sea wolf she endeavors to throw her cub on an iceberg if one is near. Failing this, she gets it on to her head and swims with it above water. But often this does not save it. Rising from below, the fish of prey comes up with tremendous force, striking the mother and jerking the cub off her head into the water.

He Lumped It.

"My coffee is not quite sweet enough," remarked he.

"Well, if you don't like it I suppose you'll have to lump it," said she, with a smile, passing the leaf sugar his way.

JOHNNY EVERS PEEVED

Couldn't Stand for Umpire Byron's Song Solo.

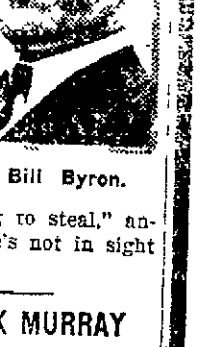

Arbiter Sings Decision in Verse and Chorus—Some Picturesque Characters Mentioned Who Are Help to Pastime.

It was very easy for aggressive and high-strung Johnny Evers to get peeved when Bill Byron called him out on strikes and accompanied the ruling with a song solo. It is tough to be called out on pitches, but when the umpire sings the decision in a verse and chorus, there is small wonder that Evers said something which caused him to apologize to Mr. Tener. However, picturesque characters like Byron, Germany Schaefer, Nick Altrock and Steve Evans are a help to the game, and Byron should be permitted to sing as often as he wishes.

John Evers.

While mentioning the comedian Steve Evans it is timely to recite a humorous incident in which Evans was the central figure in Toledo the other day. Steve has been playing for Roger Bresnahan and recently he was given a whirl at second base. One of the opposition who is said to be the slowest man in the league, hit almost to the fence and got a single. On the first pitch to the next batter, the catcher threw the ball hurriedly to Steve at second.

Bill Byron.

"What are you throwing down here for?" shouted Steve as he caught the ball.

"Why, he's trying to steal," exclaimed the surprised catcher.

"He might be trying to steal," answered Evans, "but he's not in sight yet."

EXCUSE SIMILAR TO GIANTS

Pitchers Laugh When Batters Offer Alibis for Shortcomings—One From Braves Is a Bird.

"It gives us pitchers a laugh," said Tom Hughes of the Braves, who recently pitched a no-hit, shut-out game, "to hear the batters excusing their shortcomings. Do not think for a minute that the Giants are original in their grumblings over conditions at the Polo grounds. Braves are [illegible] that is a bird. There are no signs on the fences of the Braves' field, remember, and no question of lights and shadows. But our players are not stumped for an excuse. They say that the outfield fence is too low, that when a southpaw is working the ball comes out of a bright sky to the plate and that when a right hander is working the ball comes out of the scoreboard to the batter. Can you beat it?"

Mel Wolfgang Is Star.

"Mel" Wolfgang, pitcher of the White Sox, has been twirling splendid ball all season and is now one of the most reliable members of Rowland's crew.

MODENA.

Modena, Sept. 14.—On Sunday, September 10, several friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Mackey to help them celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Nearly all their married life Mr. and Mrs. Mackey have resided in this community, where they owned and worked a farm. About four years ago after disposing of their farm, they came to this village where they have since made their home, making many friends, and are held in high esteem. Many gifts of gold and other articles were received as tokens of the occasion from their friends. One of the most notable ones being a handsome gold vase filled with fifty yellow roses, from a friend in Beacon. Many cards of congratulations were also received from friends at Beacon and Poughkeepsie. After refreshments were served, the guests departed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Mackey many more years of pleasure and happiness.

Knocked Down by a Bicycle.

Wednesday evening a young lad named Margolis living on Ann street was knocked down by a bicycle ridden by another boy on the Strand. The lad was taken into Johnston's drug store where it was found that his legs were bruised, but otherwise he was more frightened than hurt. Who was riding the bicycle was not learned.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 14.—There was a brisk demand for the industrials at the opening of the stock exchange today, with substantial gains recorded in many of those stocks. Reading attracted attention, with an advance of 1⅞ to 113¼, a new high mark for that stock, from which it reacted to 112, followed by a rally to 112½. Crucible Steel was influenced by the publication of renewed denials of a story that Bethlehem Steel was seeking control, although that report had nothing to do with yesterday's advance. Opening sales of this stock were from 92 to 92½ and in the next few minutes the price ranged from 93 to 94, against 93 at the close yesterday. Industrial Alcohol gained three points to 123½. New York Air Brake rose 3¾ to 146 and the Bethlehem Steel jumped 10 to 570. Many of the other industrials showed advances of from one to three points, with a good deal of interest attached to the trading in Baldwin Locomotive, which rose 1⅜ to 91¼. American Locomotive gained about a point, with sales at 82½. Steel Common was fairly active, advancing ½ to 105⅜. Mexican Petroleum advanced 1⅝ to 114½ and American Smelting ½ to 109.

Over half a million shares were traded in during the first hour. Realizing on a large scale was noted in the late forenoon, but the demand was sufficient in most cases to absorb the offerings. Steel Common again lifted its high record, when it sold at 106½. Bethlehem Steel jumped 20 points in all to 575, Industrial Alcohol 5½ to 126 and Studebaker 5½ to 134½. Reading ranged around 112½ in this period. International Paper, after selling at 29, reacted to 27 and United Fruit declined from 164½ to 162¾, from which it rallied to 163⅝. Consolidated Gas rose 1⅜ to 138⅜. Gains of around a point made in issues like American Steel Foundries, Pressed Steel Car and others, were well maintained. Large numbers of buying orders were left unexecuted in many issues because of price limits being so quickly passed. Sales of stocks to noon were 877,500 shares; bonds $1,570,000. Money loaning at 2¾ per cent.

Public buying became more pronounced in the late afternoon, when further advances were recorded in many of the leading issues, with Steel Common selling at high at 107, and Reading crossing 114, both new high records. Trading was on a large scale, sales up to 2 o'clock amounting to 1,294,000 shares. General Motor sold at high as 750, the highest price at which any stock ever sold in the regular way on the exchange, sales of Northern Pacific at 1,000 were forecast when the borrowing rate was 400 per cent.

The market closed irregular. Advances and recessions were recorded in many issues in the last hour. Crucible Steel, after selling above 97, declined 4 points and Steel Common yielded a point from its high record of 107. Realizing sales continued in huge volume. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds firm.

Quotations furnished by John D. Kline, Warren Building, Fair street, Kingston, N. Y., Tel. 1423. Correspondent of C. H. Van Buren & Company, members of Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York.

Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H., Division No. 4, will meet this evening at the home of Mrs. B. Breithaupt, No. 142 Bruyn avenue.

Atharhacton Rebekah Lodge has its nomination and election of officers on Friday evening and other important business will be transacted. All members are requested to be present.

Monday evening Kingston Encampment, No. 125, I. O. O. F., will meet and hold election of officers. The election of grand officers will also be held at that time. All members of the order are urged to be present at the meeting.

An unusually interesting meeting of Franklin Lodge, No. 37, K. of P., was held at the lodge rooms on Monday evening, when Mr. Crosby, who had represented the lodge at the session of the grand lodge at Dunkirk, N. Y., gave his report of the meeting. Franklin Lodge has prepared a fall program of work that will be particularly interesting and will initiate a large class in the near future.

New laws increasing the insurance rates of the Royal Arcanum were enacted at the concluding session of the Supreme Council of that organization held at Saratoga Springs Saturday. The increase, which will affect all classes of Royal Arcanum insurance, will amount to about ten per cent on the flat rate and a difference of eleven years on the graduating scale. Thus a man going in at the age of 25 years would pay the same rate as a man 36 years old formerly paid.

With Wednesday afternoon's session the most successful convention yet held by the Sons and Daughters of Liberty in the forty years of their existence came to a close in Newburgh. The next convention city will be Atlantic City, N. J. The officers for the next term will be as follows: National councilor, Walter D. Rhea of Philadelphia, Pa.; national associate councilor, Mrs. Mary B. Wolfkill of Jersey City; national vice councilor, Mrs. Lutie M. Macomber of Malden, Mass., national associate vice councilor, Miss Selina Pouch of Brooklyn, junior ex-national councilor, William H. Jeffry of East Burke, Vt.; junior ex-associate national councilor, Mrs. Anna Pettit of Philadelphia, Pa.; national secretary, W. V. Edkins of Philadelphia, Pa.; (not changed this year); national associate secretary, Mrs. Libbie Cummins of Manchester, N. H.; national treasurer, Herman W. Rellstab of Lawrenceville, N. J.; national associate treasurer, Mrs. Gordon Kendall of Paterson, N. J.; national guide, Mrs. Matilda Daywalt of Richmond, Va., inside guard Mrs. Ida Apel of Dayton, O., national outside guard, Mrs. Hattie L. Walden of Providence, R. I.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, Sept. 14.—The evening of Tuesday proved a typical one for a festival. The air was balmy and the moonlight enticing, so a goodly number of people found their way to the Methodist Church and straightway proceeded to dispose of the home made ice cream, cake, etc., that had been provided by the ladies of the church. Everything was disposed of and the ladies feel well repaid for their labor.

Miss Lizzie and Agnes Benten of Poughkeepsie were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Martin.

Fred Cole of Union Center spent the day at the home of Mrs. Amy Sheeley on Wednesday.

J. L. Schultz has been suffering from a severe cold during the past week, but we are pleased to know he is on the mend.

On October 1 Walter Stewart and family will move from the Manning place to the dwelling now owned and occupied by Mr. Moutelacy on South Main street.

Vincent Bullen will spend Friday with his parents at the parsonage, en route from Bloomingburg to New York city, where for two weeks he will be the guest of Mr. Williams of Bloomingburg. Mr. Williams will sojourn in the city for a while and then go south for the winter.

Florence Busteed is recovering nicely from an attack of summer grip.

S. E. Mott attended the Shriners' outing at Kohlanaris Park on Tuesday. We will not put him to blush by recording how many clams he consumed, not to mention the fish, chicken and other good things included in the menu of a first class bake.

Miss Frances Crowe, a nurse in the Benedictine Sanitarium, Kingston, spent last Monday with Miss Viva Freer at the latter's home in this village.

The Misses Harriet and Grace Freer motored to Kingston on Tuesday in the former's Ford runabout.

Fourteenth at Camp Whitman.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Camp Whitman, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The Fourteenth New York Regiment arrived here today from the border and pitched its camp. The Third Regiment is expected to arrive tomorrow.

Architect Beardsley Sues.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Sept. 14.—William J. Beardsley, who was appointed the architect to supervise and erect the proposed new state prison at Bear Mountain, which prison was subsequently abandoned and the work stopped as a result of the selection of a new site at Wingdale, has brought a claim against the state for $201,920, with interest from May 13, 1916.

Illinois Primary Results.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Governor Edward F. Dunne, Democrat, and Frank O. Lowden, Republican, will make the race for the governorship of Illinois this fall.

American Homes.

Before I came to America I fancied that I should find one long row of apartment houses extending from New York to San Francisco; some of them palatial, but tawdry, others lowly and some squalid. This idea was partially formed from reading in your own journals of your lack of home life as compared with our preponderance of it in England. On the contrary, I found in the localities I visited much that we can learn from you Americans of homemaking and of home living. The amazing thing to me is what your women accomplish in the actual building of their homes, and that, too, with small means.—Lady Inez Stuart in Countryside Magazine.

HOW TO KEEP LAWN CUT.

Easiest Way is to Adopt Plan of James F. Dwyer.

Those residents of Kingston who have eyed their lawns the past summer with perlexity wondering when they would secure time to run the lawn mower had better take a stroll down Broadway any fine day and gaze on the beautiful well kept lawn in front of the residence of James F. Dwyer at No. 287 Broadway. Mr. Dwyer, who resides in the old Staples homestead, had one of the largest lawns in the city to keep cut, at least it is the largest on Broadway. This morning passersby received at first hand knowledge on the best way to keep a lawn looking fine when they noticed two large sheep tethered on the lawn who were so busily engaged in cropping the grass they had no time to notice who was passing by on the street.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Sept. 14.—The "bookies" have shifted the opinion on the outcome of the National League race. They have made the Dodgers favorites in today's quotations, dropping the Phillies to second choice. However, they retained the Tigers at the top in Ban Johnson's league. The odds are:

American League—Tigers, 7 to 5; Red Sox, 8 to 5, White Sox, 11 to 5.
National League—Dodgers, 8 to 5; Phillies, 9 to 5; Braves, 13 to 5.

With three clubs close together in each league, and a hard schedule confronting each of them, fandom has tossed its hands into the air and murmured: "It's beyond power to dope 'em out any further; may the best team win."

The Tigers are favored because they are at home. The team, as a whole is hitting at a more terrific clip now than at any other time during the season And the pitchers are steadying more every day.

The Red Sox are getting some superb pitching but it isn't availing them much because the team isn't hitting. The loss of Jack Barry, the "brains of the infield," is another blow. Worst of all, from the Bostonian viewpoint, the Sox from now on must do the major portion of their fighting on foreign soil.

Chicago fans are nursing the hope of a pennant. Clarence Rowland's squad has come to life at last. Just a notch behind the Tigers and Red Sox, the white hosed folks now have the grandest chance in years to bust into a world series frolic.

Below are two tables that may help to give fandom a line on the things that are to come in the two races:

National League.

Dodgers—Games to play at home, 22; abroad, 0; Present standing. Won, 78; lost, 54; per cent, .591; pitching average, 626; batting average, .257.

Phillies—Games to play at home—20; abroad 3; Present standing: Won, 77, lost, 54, per cent, .588; pitching average, .644, batting average, .252.

Braves—Games to play at home—14, abroad, 11, Present standing Won, 75, lost, 54, per cent. .581, pitching average, .670; batting average, .230.

Note—The above team pitching average embraces the up to date showing only of the five regulars on each team, as follows:

Phillies—Alexander, Rixey, Mayer, Demaree and Bender

Dodgers — Marquard. Pfeffer, Cheney, Coombs and Smith.

Braves—Hughes, Allen, Rudolph, Tyler and Ragan.

American League.

Red Sox—Games to play at home, 7, abroad, 12, Present standing: Won, 78: lost. 57, per cent, .578, pitching average, .613; batting average, 261.

Tigers—Games to play at home, 13; abroad, 3; Present standing: Won, 80, lost 59, per cent, .576; pitching average, .567, batting average, .243.

White Sox—Games to play at home, [illegible] abroad, [illegible] Present standing: Won 78, lost 60; per cent, 565, pitching average, .670; batting average, .248

Note—The above pitching averages embrace only the work of the five regulars of each club, as follows.

Tigers—Covaleskie, Dauss, Dubuc, Boland and Mitchell.

Red Sox—Shore, Leonard, Ruth, Foster and Mays.

White Sox—Faber, Benz, Russell, Cicotte and Scott.

The schedule for the contending teams follows It includes all postponed games and regular games to be played by each club beginning with the contests this afternoon:

War on Westchester Sewage.

Deputy United States Marshal Meng at White Plains has served a notice of Secretary of War Baker on the Westchester County Board of Supervisors and Manager Brown of the Bronx Valley Trunk Sewer Commission that the United States will bring suit to force the removal of sewage pipes in the Hudson River at Yonkers unless the county build a filtration plant to purify the sewage. The secretary of war says in 1912, when the government sued the Bronx Valley Sewer Commissioners, the action was dismissed upon a signed stipulation that the commission would purify the sewage.

Hot Liners.

The league races have tightened up some more, until now fandom doesn't know where to buy the world series tickets.

Coming home to their own bailiwick the Dodgers, supposedly strong, had a lead of 1½ games. Today they lead the Phillies by half a game and the Braves by 1½ games.

The Red Sox begin their western trip today at St. Louis. They lead the Tigers by two points. Not a very comfortable margin when a team has to play most of its games away from friendly fans.

The Giants have rolled up eight straights. New Yorkers wish they had a look-in for the pennant.

The White Sox still hang around, being only 13 points behind the Red Sox. Will it be a lucky "13."

Last Saturday the Braves were almost out of it. Since then they have gained three games on the Dodgers

Pat Moran wishes the other clubs wouldn't hit Alexander and Rixey so hard. They are his "aces."

HIGH WOODS.

High Woods, Sept. 14.—Miss Maude Kiersted of Saugerties is spending some time with her mother.

Miss Elvira Snader of Kingston visited friends in this place the past week.

James C Van Aken of Barclay Heights was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. York on Sunday.

Miss Ruth Snyder of Saugerties is spending her vacation with her parents.

Nelson Carle spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shader.

William Van Bramer had the misfortune to lose a valuable cow on Saturday.

Mrs. Addie Finger and friend of Palenville, spent Sunday with her mother.

Miss Dora A. Snyder spent Saturday in Zena with Mrs. John Harrison.

Mrs. Anna Ean of Union Hill, N. J., who has been spending some time with her mother, has returned.

Aunt Polly's smiling face has once more come among us. All glad to see her.

Our Labor Day celebration netted us the round sum of $216 clear. Many thanks to all who helped us to make it a gala day. We thank the pastor and we must not forget to thank the young folks for all they did to make it a success.

At the State Fair.

Motorman Fred Lemister of the Colonial division of the trolley road left town on Wednesday evening for Syracuse where he will attend the state fair.

Mr. and Mrs. William Legg and son, Howard Legg, of No. 225 Smith avenue, and Mrs. Elizabeth Kuehn of No 5 Russell street are on an automobile trip to the state fair.

FIREMEN LOST TO POLICEMEN

A large and interested crowd of spectators watched the paid fire department baseball players go down to defeat before the husky police squad on Wednesday afternoon at the Athletic Field the final score being 8 to 7 in favor of the cops. The hero of the game was Sergeant Hanley who struck out 18 men. All of the cops however, deserve credit for the play put up. The fire laddies, however, should not be forgotten for they also put up an excellent game as the close score testifies to.

As a result of the game the pension funds of both departments will be enriched about $400 each. Although the complete returns from the game have not been received it is estimated that it will be about $800. The police already have a trifle over $500 which has been turned in. Of this amount Sergeant Murray collected $269.50 in subscriptions and undoubtedly he secured a larger amount than any one else in either department.

Mayor Canfield opened the game by throwing the first ball over the plate while Artie Rice, the well known ball player officiated acceptably as umpire.
